

Contents

PREFACE	xi
Chapter One: THE METER-MAKING ARGUMENT
Dissonance and Dialectic	3
The Radical Tradition in American Poetry	15
The Age of Growing Discomfort and Inadequate Remedy	25
Emerson and the Meter-Making Argument	30
Radical Explosions and Conservative Reassertions	34
The United States as a Poem	39
Chapter Two: THE CONSTITUTING METAPHOR
Whitman and Metaphorical Form	49
Poe and the Analogue of the Short Story	56
In Which Power Transacts Itself	61
The Four Years' War as Pivot	69
The Waste Land and the Cantos	80
The Genesis of Hart Crane's The Bridge	89
William Carlos Williams and Open-Ended Metaphor	98
Chapter Three: WHAT THE THUNDER SAID
Voices and the Primitive Terror	107
The Early American Poets and Poetic Diction	112
The Birth of Death in Whitman	123
From Imagism to The Waste Land	135
Linguistic Lapses in Crane and Stevens	151
William Carlos Williams, M.D.	166
Poe Against the Thin Edge	177