

Contents of the Seventh Volume.

LETTERS to and from Mr. WYCHERLEY.

From the Year 1704 to 1710. p. 1

LETTER

- I. OF Mr. Dryden's death : his moral character : the poets who succeeded him : the temper of critics.
- II. From Mr. Wycherley.
- III. Mr. Wycherley's humanity ; his encouragement of young writers ; concerning the Author's Pastorals.
- IV. From Mr. Wycherley : Answer to the former.
- V. From the same.
- VI. Some reasons why friendships may be contracted between persons of unequal years, and the advantage of such friendships.
- VII. Against Compliment.
- VIII. An account of the duller sort of Country Gentlemen, and Country Life.
- IX. From Mr. Wycherley.
- X. From Mr. Wycherley. Of the correction of his Poem to Mr. Dryden, and other papers.

LETTER

- XI. Of the same, a plan for correcting and improving those poems.
- XII. From Mr. Wycherley.
- XIII. On the same, and further proposals for correcting them.
- XIV. From Mr. Wycherley.
- XV. More concerning corrections of the poems.
- XVI. From Mr. Wycherley, after his illness.
- XVII. From Mr. Wycherley.
- XVIII. From Mr. Wycherley. Concerning the Miscellanies, and the Critics.
- XIX. Concerning Miscellanies, and the danger of young poets.
- XX. From Mr. Wycherley.
- XXI. From Mr. Wycherley.
- XXII. From Mr. Wycherley. His desire of his company; and request to proceed in correcting his papers.
- XXIII. More about the poems.
- XXIV. Corrections sent.
- XXV. From Mr. Wycherley. In answer to the account of the state of his papers.
- XXVI. The last advice about his papers, to turn them into select Maxims and Reflections, which Mr. Wycherley agreed to and begun before his death.

LETTERS

LETTERS to and from Mr. WALSH.
 From 1705 to 1707. P. 57

LETTER

- I. Mr. Walsh to Mr. Wycherley.
 - II. Mr. Walsh to Mr. Pope. Concerning pastoral and pastoral comedy.
 - III. The answer. Of correcting, and the extreme of it. Of pastoral comedy, and its character. Of the liberty of borrowing from the ancients.
 - IV. From Mr. Walsh. On the same subjects.
 - V. From Mr. Walsh. Of mechanical critics; of wit and conceit, a request concerning one of his pastorals.
 - VI. Some critical observations in English Versification.
-

LETTERS to and from Mr. CROMWELL.
 From 1708 to 1711. P. 74

LETTER

- I. To Mr. Cromwell.
- II. To the same.
- III. To the same.
- IV. Concerning the first publication of the author's poems.
- V. Of his translation of the first book of Statius.
- VI. Of his Juvenile Poems.

LETTER

- VII. Criticisms on Statius.
 VIII. Of Mr. Wycherley's coldness.
 IX. Of the general conduct and inequality of men's lives.
 X. The use of poetical studies. A panegyrick upon dogs.
 XI. Of the taste of country gentlemen.
 XII.
 XIII. After an illness. The obscurity of a country life.
 XIV. On the same subject. Concerning Ronsards.
 XV. From Mr. Cromwell. On Priam's speech to Pyrrhus in Virgil.
 XVI. Answer to the same.
 XVII. Criticisms about an elegy of Ovid.
 XVIII. On sickness and disappointment.
 XIX.
 XX. Of Philips's pastorals.
 XXI. From Mr. Cromwell. On a passage in Lucan.
 XXII. Answer to the former, with another criticism on Lucan.
 XXIII. From Mr. Cromwell.
 XXIV.
 XXV. From Mr. Cromwell.
 XXVI. Observations on Crashaw's poems.
 XXVII. Concerning laughter.

XXVIII.

LETTER

XXVIII. *From Mr. Cromwell.*XXIX. *Of the study of poetry; Mr. Wycherley, &c.*XXX. From Mr. Cromwell.

XXXI.

LETTERS to Several LADIES. p.153

LETTER

I.

II.

III.

IV.

V.

VI.

VII. *To a lady from Bath.*VIII. To the same.

IX.

X.

XI. *To Mrs. — on the Earl of Oxford's Behaviour, apprehensions of commotions, army in Hyde-Park.*XII. Praise of a country life. Concern for the separation of friends. The comforts of integrity and independency.

XIII.

XIV.

XV. Description of a journey to Oxford, and manner of life there.

LETTER

- XVI. Of a lady's sickness.
 XVII. Witty letters undervalued in comparison of sincere ones.
 XVIII. On the same subject, to the hon. Mrs. H.
 XIX. To an unfortunate lady.
 XX. To a lady abroad.
 XXI. To the same.
 XXII. To the same.
 XXIII. To Mrs. Arabella Fermor on her marriage.
-

LETTERS to and from Sir WILLIAM TRUMBULL.

From 1705 to 1716.

P. 209

LETTER

- I. From Sir William Trumbull. On occasion of Milton's Juvenilia, encouraging the author to publish his.
 II. From Sir William Trumbull. Of his first translation of Homer.
 III. From Sir William Trumbull. On the Rape of the Lock.
 IV. Against compliment, and vanity; the praise of sincerity and friendship.
 V. Concerning the Tragedy of Cato.
 VI. From Sir William Trumbull.
 VII. Against

LETTER

- VII. Against the violence of parties, and the praise of general benevolence.
 VIII. From Sir William Trumbull. Of an epigram in Martial, on a happy old age.
-

LETTERS to and from Several Persons.

From 1711 to 1714. p. 225

LETTER

- I. To the Hon. J. C. Esq. Reflections on the Essay on Criticism.
 II. To the same. On a passage on the same Essay.
 III. To the same against party-spirit.
 IV. To my Lord Lansdown.
 V. The Hon. J. C. to Mr. Pope concerning Betterton's remains. Rape of the Lock, &c.
 VI. The answer.
 VII. To — on returning his letters.
 VIII. From the Lord Lansdown.
 IX. To General Anthony Hamilton, on his having translated the Essay on Criticism into French verse.

LETTERS to and from Mr. STEELE, Mr.
ADDISON, &c.

From 1712 to 1715. p. 249

LETTER

- I. Mr. Steele to Mr. Pope. Of Sir Charles Sedley's death. The author's Eclogue on the Messiah.
- II. Concerning a public, private, or mixed life.
- III. Of sickness and dying young.
- IV. On the Emperor Adrian's verses on his death-bed.
- V. From Mr. Steele.
- VI.
- VII. Of the Emperor Adrian.
- VIII. From Mr. Steele.
- IX.
- X. On Dennis's remarks on Cato.
- XI. From Mr. Addison. Concerning Mr. Pope's translation of Homer.
- XII. From Mr. Addison. On the same.
- XIII. Against party spirit.
- XIV. Of the freedom of a friend, The incongruity of Man, and the vanity of the World.
- XV. Of the Version of Homer : Party animosity.
- XVI. Concerning some misunderstandings.
- XVII. To

LETTER

- XVII. To the Hon. — concerning Mr. Addison, Philips's calumny, and Mr. Gay's pastorals.
- XVIII. The vanity of poetical fame, serious thoughts.
- XIX. Concerning the translation of Homer.
- XX. To Mr. Jervas, of the same.
- XXI. To the same, on the equal and easy terms of friendship.
- XXII. Mr. Jervas to Mr. Pope, concerning Mr. Addison.
- XXIII. The answer.
- XXIV. Mr. Pope to the Earl of Halifax.
- XXV. Dr. Parnelle, Dr. Berkley, Mr. Gay, and Dr. Arbuthnot; concerning Mr. Pope's Homer.
- XXVI. To the Hon. James Craggs, Esq. on the same.
- XXVII. To Mr. Congreve. Of sincerity; the scurrilities of abusive critics; what ought to be the temper of an author.
- XXVIII. To the same, of the Farce called the What-d'ye-call-it.
- XXIX. To the same.
- XXX. From Mr. Congreve.

LETTERS TO SEVERAL PERSONS.

From the year 1714 to 1721. p. 313.

LETTER

- I. From the Reverend Dean Berkley to Mr. Pope. Of the Rape of the Lock; the state of learning in Italy.
- II. Mr. Pope to Mr. Jervas.
- III. To the same.
- IV. To the same.
- V. The Hon. Mr. Craggs to Mr. Pope.
- VI. To Mr. Fenton. Concerning Mr. Secretary Craggs's advice to him to write. The author's manner of passing his time.
- VII. From Dean Berkley. A description of the island Inarime. Character of the Italians.
- VIII. Mr. Pope to — the author building and planting: Death of several friends, and particularly of Dr. Garth.
- IX. To Mr. — on the circuit.
- X. To the Earl of Burlington, an account of a journey to Oxford with Bernard Lintott, a bookseller.
- XI. To the Duke of Buckingham in answer to his Letter on Buckingham-house.
- XII. From the Duke of Buckingham to Mr. Pope, on the dispute in France concerning Homer.

XIII. An-

LETTER

- XIII. Answer to the former.
 XIV. From Dr. Arbuthnot, after the Queen's death, of the papers of Scriblerus and Dr. Swift.
 XV. To Dr. Arbuthnot, on his return from France, and on the calumnies about the Odyssey.
 XVI. To Robert Earl of Oxford.
 XVII. The Earl of Oxford's answer.

LETTERS