

Contents

I. INTRODUCTION

1. The study of persuasion, 3

The significance of the study of persuasion in contemporary education, 4
Problems related to the study of persuasion, 6
A modern approach to the study of persuasion, 9 Conclusion, 23

2. The vehicles of persuasion, 24

The role of the media, 25 Speech, 27 Printed media, 39
Mass nonverbal vehicles, 46 Conclusion, 49

II. EXPLORING THE BASES OF PERSUASION

3. The search for a theory of persuasion, 55

Introduction, 56 Early theories of human nature, 57
Personality type and trait theories, 61
Early general theories of motivation, 65
Contemporary approaches to the study of motivation, 67
Modern rhetorical approaches to persuasion, 74 Conclusion, 79

4. The drives and motives in motivation, 80

Introduction, 81 The bodily bases of motivation, 84
Motives—the learned directive energies of motivation, 88 Conclusion, 103

5. Emotions—the affective dimensions of motivation, 104

Introduction, 104 The nature of emotions, 106
Emotion and motivation, 111
Evaluating the effectiveness of emotional arousal in modifying attitudes and behavior, 113
A summary of the practical implications for persuasion of theory and research in emotional behavior, 120 Conclusion, 124

6. Attitudes and attitude change: theory and practice, 125

Introduction, 126 The nature of attitudes, 127
Theories of attitude change, 131 Conditions facilitating attitude change, 145
Attitude change and overt behavioral change, 148
Resistance to attitude change, 150
Attitude change and the persuader's specific audience and purpose, 153
Conclusion, 156

7. The influences of social behavior on persuasion, 157

Introduction, 158 Modern society—a structure built on interrelationships, 158
The persuader's approach to the study of social behavior, 159
Social behavior in conventional groups, 160
The influence of the group on the individual, 164
Implications of group behavior for the persuader, 170 Conclusion, 172

8. Critical thinking in persuasion, 174

Introduction, 175
Using process-oriented criteria to classify persuasive interactions, 176
The nature of proof in persuasion, 178
Support contributed by the receiver of persuasion, 180
A role for absolute standards of critical thinking in persuasion, 190
The importance of reasoned discourse in persuasion, 195 Conclusion, 198

9. The cultural bases of persuasion, 200

Introduction, 200 Culture and the process of persuasive communication, 203
Intercultural research and the study of persuasion, 211 Conclusion, 223

10. The ethical dimension of persuasion, 225

Introduction, 226 A philosophical base for an ethics of persuasion, 226
 Popular American approaches to ethical problems in persuasion, 234
 Inducing an emotional condition for purposes of persuasion, 242
 Social utility as a guide to ethical persuasion, 245 Conclusion, 245

III. *IMPLEMENTING THE PERSUASIVE PROCESS11. *The role of credibility in persuasion, 251

Introduction, 251 Classical theories of ethos, 252
 Contemporary approaches to the study of credibility, 254
 Source credibility and the process view of persuasion, 260
 A credibility checklist for the theorist and practitioner, 265
 Conclusion, 266

12. Attention and perception in persuasion, 268

The role of attention and perception in persuasive discourse, 269
 The nature of attention, 269 The nature of perception, 275
 The persuader's perception of the persuadee's attention and perceptual behavior, 278 Conclusion, 280

13. Nonverbal persuasion: personal interaction, 281

Introduction, 281
 Functions of nonverbal interpersonal behaviors in persuasion, 284
 Quantifiable modalities of nonverbal interpersonal persuasion, 292
 Conclusion, 300

14. Nonverbal persuasion: context, 302

Introduction, 302 Personal space in the context of persuasion, 304
 Nonverbal elements in the setting for persuasion, 309 Conclusion, 321

15. Persuasion in campaigns, 323

Introduction, 323
 A rationale for understanding the effects of persuasion in campaigns, 325
 Commercial campaigns, 330 Social action campaigns, 338
 Conclusion, 345

Author index, 346

Subject index, 350