

Contents

PREFACE

Chapter 1	OBJECTIVE AND METHOD	1
	Brief Overview	1
	Two Youth Movements	2
	Studies on Dissidence	8
	Identification: The Role of Imitation	12
	A Method of Studying the Parents' Influence on the Child	17
Chapter 2	OBSERVATIONS ON THE NUCLEAR FAMILY	25
	Affection and Direction	25
	Stephen and John	28
	The Picture of the Past	28
	Parent-Child Interactions	33
	The Picture of the Present	43
	The Parents' Perception of the Child's Individuality: Paul and Jerry	63
	Mother with Jerry: First Interactions after Birth	64
	Paul and Jerry at Preschool Age: Parent-Child Interactions	68
	Morality: General Remarks	86
	Paul and Jerry	93
	An Enlightened Alternative: Ronny	99
	Some Considerations	106
Chapter 3	PATTERNS OF PARENT-CHILD INTERACTION AND COUNTERCULTURE GROUPS	111
	Grete—A Member of the German Youth Movement	112
	Childhood	113

Grete Joins the D.W.V.	117
Trude: The Leader	120
Exclusion	124
Issues of Identification	128
Communes and Communities	131
Commune Haven	134
Commune Pharos	146
Catherine—Another Leader	154
Issues of Identification	159
Childrearing in Communes	164
Some Characteristics of the Counterculture Person	178
 Chapter 4 TWO PATTERNS OF PARENT-CHILD INTERAC- TION IN ISRAEL: KIBBUTZ AND URBAN FAMILIES	 187
Childrearing in the Kibbutz	187
Studies Comparing Kibbutz and Family Care	188
Research Procedures	190
The Families	191
Parent-Child Interactions	192
Fantasy Activity: Finger Puppets	193
Organizing an Environment: Small Figures	203
Separation: The Adult Leaves the Room	210
“Take Your Child on Your Lap”	220
Modeling and Imitation	224
Stress	225
Conclusions	228
 Chapter 5 SUMMARY	 229
 APPENDIX: THE MARSCHAK INTERACTION METHOD (MIM) Abbreviated Form	 235
A. Introduction	237
B. Key of Symbols	246
C. Judging Procedure	251
D. General Lists for Describing Behaviors—All Tasks	254
E. Two Examples Illustrating the MIM Method	282
 INDEX	 288