

Contents

List of illustrations	vii
Notes on contributors	xv
Subject/Object: New Studies in Sculpture Lisa Le Feuvre	xix
Acknowledgments	xxi
Introduction John C. Welchman	1
1 Art and commodity: sculpture under glass at the Crystal Palace Kate Nichols	23
2 Through the vitrine: Damien Hirst's For the Love of God Tag Gronberg	47
3 Magic windows: Frederick Kiesler's displays for Saks Fifth Avenue, New York in 1928 Barnaby Haran	69
4 Between Wunderkammer and shop window: surrealist naturalia cabinets Marion Endt-Jones	95
5 Sculpture in Fog : Beuys's vitrines Claudia Mesch	121

6	Framed devices: Paul Thek's Technological Reliquaries Susanne Neubauer	143
7	Unattributed objects: the Mouse Museum , the Ray Gun Wing , and four artists Genevieve Waller	159
8	Fluxus soapbox Cornelia Lauf	179
9	Twentieth-century display case archive Daniel Edwards	197
10	Cults of transparency: the curtain wall and the shop window in the work of Dan Graham and Josephine Meckseper Sarah Lookofsky	211
11	The transparent signifier: Hirst, invisibility, and critique Elyse Speaks	231
12	Between inside and out Blake Stimson	251
	Index	271