

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Series Editor's Foreword Daniel Albright	xi
Introduction: The Agency of Sound in African American Fiction Saadi A. Simawe	xix
1. Singing the Unsayable: Theorizing Music in Dessa Rose Jacquelyn A. Fox-Good	1
2. Claude McKay: Music, Sexuality, and Literary Cosmopolitanism Tom Lutz	41
3. Black Moves, White Ways, Every Body's Blues: Orphic Power in Langston Hughes's The Ways of White Folks Jane Olmsted	65
4. Black and Blue: The Female Body of Blues Writing in Jean Toomer, Toni Morrison, and Gayl Jones Katherine Boutry	91

5. That Old Black Magic? Gender and Music in Ann Petry's Fiction Johanna X. K. Garvey	119
6. "It Don't Mean a Thing If It Ain't Got That Swing": Jazz's Many Uses for Toni Morrison Alan J. Rice	153
7. Shange and Her Three Sisters "Sing a Liberation Song": Variations on the Orphic Theme Maria V. Johnson	181
8. Nathaniel Mackey's Unit Structures Joseph Allen	205
9. Shamans of Song: Music and the Politics of Culture in Alice Walker's Early Fiction Saadi A. Simawe	231
Contributors	269
Index of Names	273