

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	vii
INTRODUCTION	xv
by Thomas F. Pettigrew

PART I—PSYCHOANALYSIS;
STIMULUS-RESPONSE
THEORY; EARLY
INFLUENCES 1

First Encounter with Freud
Freudian Repetition Compulsion
Character Typologies of Freud and Jung	The Unconscious Reactions to Lewin and Eysenck
Stimulus-Response Versus More Individual-Centered Psychology	Influence of Münsterberg, William James, Spranger, and Eclecticism

PART II—SOME UNIQUE CONTRIBUTIONS 21

The Analysis of Personality Traits	The Functional Autonomy of Motives The Self, Ego, Proprium, and Phenomenology
---------------------------------------	--

PART III—CURRENT AREAS OF INTEREST IN
PSYCHOLOGY 45

Neurophysiology	Genetic Determinants of Personality
-----------------	--

CONTENTS

Versus Social-Environmental Determinants		Existentialism
		The Nature of Prejudice
Personality and Religion
Maturity, Aging, and Mental Health		Personality Testing
		The Study of Values
Philosophy of Training
Psychology Students
"Scientism" and Significant Research		Action Research
		Objectivity in the Study of Personality
Closed Systems		Open Versus Use of Autobiographies

PART IV—THREATS TO MAN
AND SOCIETY; EVALUA-
TIONS OF MOST SIG-NIFICANT CONTRIBU-
TIONS; THE FUTURE
OF PERSONALITY
PSYCHOLOGY 101

Man and Overconformity
Psychologists' Role in Solving Social Problems
Psychologists and World Peace		Estimate of His Own Most Important Contributions
The Future of Personality Psychology

PART V—SYMPOSIUM: “GORDON ALLPORT: HIS UNIQUE CON- TRIBUTIONS TO CONTEMPORARY PERSONALITY AND SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY”	115
PART VI—SOME OBSERVA- TIONS OF THE DIALOGUE TECHNIQUE	141
Historical Background of Project Other Participants in the Series Films Versus Books Interviewer as Medium Rather than “Confronter” Theoretical Themes in Questions
BIBLIOGRAPHY	151
INDEX	153