

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Series Editor's Foreword Daniel Albright	ix
Introduction Lawrence Kramer	xvii
CHAPTER 1 "Red War Is My Song": Whitman, Higginson, and Civil War Music John M. Picker	1
CHAPTER 2 "No Armpits, Please, We're British": Whitman and English Music, 1884–1936 Byron Adams	25
CHAPTER 3 Eros, Expressionism, and Exile: Whitman in German Music Werner Grünzweig and Walter Grünzweig	43
CHAPTER 4 Reclaiming Walt: Marc Blitzstein's Whitman Settings David Metzger	65
CHAPTER 5 A Visionary Backward Glance: The Divided Experience in Paul Hindemith's When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd: A Requiem "For Those We Love" Philip Coleman-Hull	89

CHAPTER 6	“I’m an American!” Whitman, Weill, and Cultural Identity Kim H. Kowalke	109
CHAPTER 7	Three American Requiems: Contemplating “When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom’d” Kathy Rugoff	133
CHAPTER 8	Like Falling Leaves: The Erotics of Mourning in Four Drum-Taps Settings Lawrence Kramer	151
	Contributors	167
	Notes to the Compact Disc	169
	Index of Names	173
	Index of Titles	177