

Contents

General introduction Merja Kytö and Matti Rissanen	1
--	---

Period introductions

Old English Leena Kahlas-Tarkka, Matti Kilpiö and Aune Österman	21 <sub>4</sub>
---	-----------------

Middle English Saara Nevanlinna, Päivi Pahta, Kirsti Peitsara and Irma Taavitsainen	33 <sub>X</sub>
---	-----------------

Early Modern British English Terttu Nevalainen and Helena Raumolin-Brunberg	53
---	----

Older Scots Anneli Meurman-Solin	75
--	----

Early American English Merja Kytö	83
---	----

Pilot studies

Introduction Matti Rissanen	95
---------------------------------------	----

Syntactic and semantic properties of the present indicative forms of the verb to be in Old English Matti Kilpiö	97
---	----

Ðær compounds from Old to Early Middle English Aune Österman	117
The structure of Middle English similes of equality Saara Nevanlinna	139
Genre/subgenre styles in Late Middle English? Irma Taavitsainen	171
Toward the Modern English dichotomy between every and each Leena Kahlas-Tarkka	201
On the development of the by-agent in English Kirsti Peitsara	219
Periphrastic do in sixteenth- and seventeenth-century Scots Anneli Meurman-Solin	235
“By and by enters [this] my artificiall foole ... who, when Jack beheld, sodainely he flew at him”: Searching for syntactic constructions in the Helsinki Corpus Merja Kytö and Matti Rissanen	253
Bibliography	267
Index of authors	291
Index of subjects	294