

810
2957

7823037

CONTENTS

1 Modelling English	2	10 Etymology	136
PART I THE HISTORY OF ENGLISH	4	• Lexical history 136 • Semantic change 138
2 The origins of English	6	• Folk etymology 139 • Place names 140 • Surnames 148
3 Old English	8	• First names 150 • Nicknames 152 • Object names 154
• Early borrowings 8 • Runes 9 • The Old English corpus 10		• Eponyms 155
• Literary texts 12 • The Anglo-Saxon Chronicle 14		11 The structure of the lexicon	156
• Spelling 16 • Sounds 18 • Grammar 20 • Vocabulary 22		• Semantic structure 156 • Semantic fields 157
• Late borrowings 24 • Dialects 28		• Dictionary and thesaurus 158 • Collocations 160
4 Middle English	30	• Lexical predictability 162 • Idioms 163 • Synonyms 164
• French and English 30 • The transition from Old English 32		• Antonyms 165 • Hyponyms 166 • Incompatibility 167
• The Middle English corpus 34 • Literary texts 36		• Other sense relations 168
• Chaucer 38 • Spelling 40 • Sounds 42 • Grammar 44		12 Lexical dimensions	170
• Vocabulary 46 • Latin borrowings 48 • Dialects 50		• Loaded vocabulary 170 • Taboo 172 • Swearing 173
• Middle Scots 52 • The origins of Standard English 54		• Jargon 174 • Doublepeak 176 • Political correctness 177
5 Early Modern English		• Catch phrases 178 • Vogue words 179 • Slogans 180
• Caxton 56 • Transitional texts 58 • Renaissance English 60		• Graffiti 181 • Slang 182 • Quotations 184 • Proverbs 184
• The inkhorn controversy 61 • Shakespeare 62		• Archaisms 185 • Clichés 186 • Last words 187
• The King James Bible 64 • Spelling and regularization 66		PART III ENGLISH GRAMMAR	188
• Punctuation 68 • Sounds 69 • Grammar 70 • Vocabulary 72		Grammatical mythology	190
• The Academy debate 73 • Johnson 74		• The nature of grammar 190
6 Modern English		• Knowing vs knowing about 191 • Traditional grammar 192
• Transition 76 • Grammatical trends 77 • Prescriptivism 78		• Prescriptive grammar 194 • The 20th-century legacy 196
• American English 80 • Breaking the rules 84		• The main branches of grammar 197
• Variety awareness 86 • Scientific language 87		14 The structure of words	198
• Literary voices 88 • Dickens 89 • Recent trends 90		• Morphology 198 • Suffixation 198 • Adjectives 199
7 World English	92	• Nouns 200 • The apostrophe 203 • Pronouns 203
• The New World 92 • American dialects 93 • Canada 95		• Verbs 204
• Black English Vernacular 96 • Australia 98 • New Zealand 99		15 Word classes	206
• South Africa 100 • South Asia 101 • West Africa 102		• Parts of speech 206 • Traditional definitions 206
• East Africa 103 • South-East Asia and the South Pacific 104		• New classes 207 • Nouns 208 • Pronouns 210
• A world language 106 • Numbers of speakers 108		• Adjectives 211 • Adverbs 211 • Verbs 212
• Standard English 110 • The future of English 112		• Prepositions 213 • Conjunctions 213 • Interjections 213
• English threatened and as threat 114		16 The structure of sentences	214
PART II ENGLISH VOCABULARY	116	• Spoken and written syntax 214 • Types of sentence 216
8 The nature of the lexicon	118	• Sentence structure 217 • Sentence functions 218
• Lexemes 118 • The size of the English lexicon 119		• Clause elements and types 220 • Phrases 222
• Abbreviations 120 • Proper names 122		• Noun phrases 222 • Verb phrases 224
• The size of a person's lexicon 123		• Multiple sentences 226 • Abbreviation 228
9 The sources of the lexicon	124	• Disjuncts and comment clauses 229 • Reporting speech 230
• Native vocabulary 124 • Foreign borrowings 126		• Sentence information 231 • Beyond the sentence 232
• Word-formation 128 • Unusual structures 130
• Lexical creation 132 • Literary neologism 134

968 832 02

PART IV SPOKEN AND WRITTEN ENGLISH		234
17 The sound system		236
• Phonetics and phonology	236	• Vocal organs 236
• Vowels	237	• Consonants 242
		• Syllables 246
• Connected speech	247	• Prosody 248
• Sound symbolism	250	• Pronunciation in practice 254
18 The writing system		256
• Graphetics and graphology	257	• Typography 257
• The alphabet	258	• Properties of letters 265
• Letter frequency	265	• Letter distribution 266
• Letter symbolism	268	• Analysing handwriting 269
• Graphetic variety	270	• Spelling 272
• Sources of irregularity	274	• Spelling reform 276
• Punctuation	278	• The development of the writing system 280
PART V USING ENGLISH		284
19 Varieties of discourse		286
• Structure vs use	286	• Pragmatic issues 286
• The nature of discourse	287	• Microlinguistic studies 288
• Texts and varieties	290	• Speech vs writing 291
• Mixed medium	292	• Monologue and dialogue 294
20 Regional variation		298
• Accent and dialect	298	• International and intranational 299
• A day in the life of the language	300
• American and British English	306	• American dialects 312
• British dialects	318	• Scotland 328
		• Wales 334
• Ireland	336	• Canada 340
		• Caribbean 344
• Pidgins and creoles	346	• Australia 350
• New Zealand	354	• South Africa 356
		• New Englishes 358
21 Social variation		364
• Sociolinguistic perspective	364	• Received Pronunciation 365
• Prescriptive attitudes	366	• Gender 368
		• Occupation 370
• Religion	371	• Science 372
		• Law 374
		• Plain English 377
• Politics	378	• News media 380
		• Journalism 382
• Broadcasting	384	• Weather forecasting 385
• Sports commentary	386	• Advertising 388
• Restricted varieties	390	• New varieties 392
PART VI LEARNING ABOUT ENGLISH		424
22 Personal variation		394
• Individual differences	394	• Deviance 395
• Word games	396	• Rule-breaking varieties 400
• The edges of language	403	• Jokes and puns 404
• Comic alphabets	407	• Variety humour 410
• Literary freedom	412	• Phonetics and phonology 414
• Graphetics and graphology	416	• Grammar and lexicon 418
• Discourse and variety	420	• Stylometry 423
PART VI LEARNING ABOUT ENGLISH		424
23 Learning English as a mother tongue		426
• Child language acquisition	426	• Literacy 427
• Grammatical development	428
• Early words and sounds	430	• Reading and writing 432
• Insufficient language	434	• Language disability 434
24 New ways of studying English		436
• Technological revolution	436	• Corpus studies 438
• National and international corpora	440	• Dictionaries 442
• Innovations	444	• Sources and resources 446
APPENDICES		447
I Glossary		448
II Special symbols and abbreviations		461
III References		462
IV Further reading		467
V Index of linguistic items		470
VI Index of authors and personalities		472
VII Index of topics		475
Acknowledgements		486