

Table of Contents

1. Introduction	1
1.1. Subject of Investigation	1
1.2. Four Principles of Gender Differences in Language	2
1.3. Tag Questions	4
1.4. Adverbial Clauses	5
1.5. Structure of the Book	6
2. Theoretical Preliminaries and Hypotheses	7
2.1. Functional Syntax	7
2.1.1. Interpersonal Meaning	7
2.1.2. Epistemic Meaning	8
2.1.3. The Development of Epistemic Meaning	9
2.1.4. Epistemic Modality and Hedging	10
2.1.5. Position of Hedges	12
2.1.6. Positive and Negative Politeness	13
2.1.7. The Epistemic Contract	14
2.1.8. Presupposed and Asserted Material	17
2.2. Syntactic Variation	20
2.3. Theories of Gender Differences	22
2.3.1. Sex-Specific Socialisation Approaches	23
2.3.2. Reconstructed Psychoanalysis Theory and Developmental Psychology Approaches	25
2.3.3. Marxist-Inspired Theory	26
2.3.4. Intergroup Relations and Social Change Theory	26
2.3.5. Community of Practice Approach	28
2.3.6. Expectation States Theory	28
2.4. Hypotheses	30
3. Methodology	35
3.1. Statistical Testing in Previous Research	35
3.2. The Data	36
3.2.1. The London-Lund Corpus	36
3.2.2. Adaptation of the London-Lund Corpus for Sociolinguistic Purposes	37
3.2.3. Correction of Errors in the Corpus Description	38
3.2.4. Women's and Men's Contribution to the Data	39
3.3. Methodological Preliminaries	41
3.4. Tokens as Common Denominator	42
3.5. Significance Levels	43
4. Syntactic Variation According to Sex: Tag Questions	44
4.1. Definition of Tag Questions	44
4.2. Tag Questions According to Gender	47
4.2.1. Controversial Views and Contradictory Findings	47

4.2.2. Corpus Analysis: Women's and Men's Overall Use of Tag Questions in the London-Lund Corpus	49
4.3. Formal Classification of Tag Questions	51
4.3.1. Tag Questions According to Sex and Formal Type.....	51
4.3.2. Tag Questions According to Sex and Tone: Uplides vs Downglides.....	54
4.3.3. Tag Questions According to Sex and Continuing vs Final Intonation	57
4.4. Functional Classifications of Tag Questions	58
4.4.1. Methodological Considerations in Functional Classifications of Tag Questions	58
4.4.2. Three-Fold Classification of Tag Questions According to Function: Holmes (1984), Cameron et al. (1988).....	62
4.4.3. Four-Fold Classification of Tag Questions According to Function: Holmes (1990).....	66
4.4.4. Five-Fold Classification of Tag Questions According to Function in the London-Lund Corpus	68
4.5. Summary	75
5. Syntactic Variation According to Sex: Finite Adverbial Clauses.....	76
5.1. Definition of Finite Adverbial Clauses.....	76
5.2. Syntactic Functions of Adverbial Clauses.....	77
5.2.1. Adjuncts and Disjuncts.....	77
5.2.2. Content and Style Disjuncts	77
5.3. Semantic Functions of Adverbial Clauses.....	78
5.3.1. Defining Finite Adverbial Causal Clauses	79
5.3.2. Defining Finite Adverbial Conditional Clauses	79
5.3.3. Defining Finite Adverbial Purpose Clauses	80
5.3.4. Defining Finite Adverbial Concessive Clauses	80
5.4. Adverbial Clauses According to Sex.....	81
5.4.1. Causal Clauses According to Sex.....	82
5.4.2. Conditional Clauses According to Sex.....	83
5.4.3. Purpose Clauses According to Sex.....	84
5.4.4. Concessive Clauses According to Sex	85
5.5. Bidirectionality of Adverbial Clauses	86
5.5.1. Preposed Adverbial Clauses	88
5.5.2. Postposed Adverbial Clauses	89
5.5.3. Adverbial Clauses without a Main Clause	90
5.5.4. Positioning of Finite Adverbial Clauses According to Sex	91
5.5.5. Positioning of Causal Clauses	94
5.5.6. Positioning of Conditional Clauses	96
5.5.7. Positioning of Purpose Clauses	99
5.5.8. Positioning of Concessive Clauses.....	99
5.5.9. Summary	100
5.6. Continuing and Final Intonation.....	100
5.6.1. Continuing Intonation	103
5.6.2. Final Intonation	104
5.6.3. Adverbial Clauses According to Intonation and Sex.....	107
5.6.4. Causal Clauses with Continuing and Final Intonation	111

5.6.5. Conditional Clauses with Continuing and Final Intonation	114
5.6.6. Purpose Clauses with Continuing and Final Intonation	115
5.6.7. Concessive Clauses with Continuing and Final Intonation	116
5.6.8. Summary	118
5.7. Functional Differentiation of Adverbial Clauses.....	119
5.7.1. Delimiting Borderline Cases	121
5.7.2. Propositional, Conclusive and Speech-Act Domain in X-Bar Theory	124
5.7.3. The Relation between Final Intonation and Function	128
5.7.4. Causal Clauses According to Function	130
5.7.5. Conditional Clauses According to Function	132
5.7.6. Purpose Clauses According to Function	133
5.7.7. Concessive Clauses According to Function	134
5.7.8. Discussion	136
6. External Determinants Co-Extensive with Sex	139
6.1. Style.....	140
6.1.1. Style-Shift and Gender: Previous Research	141
6.1.2. Definition of Style.....	142
6.1.3. Style as Audience Design.....	142
6.1.4. Categorization of Styles	144
6.1.5. Finite Adverbial Clauses According to Sex and Style	145
6.1.6. Causal Clauses According to Sex and Style.....	147
6.1.7. Conditional Clauses According to Sex and Style.....	150
6.1.8. Purpose Clauses According to Sex and Style.....	151
6.1.9. Concessive Clauses According to Sex and Style	152
6.1.10. Tag Questions According to Style	153
6.2. Power.....	156
6.2.1. Finite Adverbial Clauses According to Sex and Power	157
6.2.2. Application Interviews	161
6.2.3. Tag Questions According to Sex and Power.....	163
6.2.4. Tag Questions According to Sex and Interactional Role	165
6.3. Group Composition	167
6.3.1. Previous Research Finding More Pronounced Sex Differences in Cross-Sex than in Same-Sex Interaction	168
6.3.2. Previous Research Finding More Pronounced Sex Differences in Same-Sex than in Cross-Sex Interaction	169
6.3.3. Adverbial Clauses in Same-Sex and Cross-Sex Conversations	170
6.3.4. Adverbial Clause Types in Same-Sex and Cross-Sex Conversations	171
6.3.5. Tag Questions in Same-Sex and Cross-Sex Conversations.....	173
6.4. Surreptitiousness	174
6.4.1. Adverbial Clauses According to Surreptitiousness	175
6.4.2. Causal Clauses According to Surreptitiousness	176
6.4.3. Conditional Clauses According to Surreptitiousness	177
6.4.4. Purpose Clauses According to Surreptitiousness	179
6.4.5. Concessive Clauses According to Surreptitiousness	180
6.4.6. Tag Questions According to Surreptitiousness	180
6.4.7. Summary	180
6.5. Other Factors	181

VIII

7. Explaining the Findings: Why Women and Men Talk Differently	183
7.1. Semantic Aspects Underlying the Gendered Distribution of Finite Adverbial Clauses	183
7.1.1. Women's Preference for Causal and Purpose Clauses	184
7.1.2. Men's Preference for Concessive Clauses	185
7.2. Positional Aspects Underlying the Gendered Distribution of Finite Adverbial Clauses.....	186
7.2.1. Women's Preference for Postposed Adverbial Clauses	186
7.2.2. Men's Preference for Preposed Adverbial Clauses	187
7.3. Gender and Turn-Allocation.....	188
7.4. Functional Aspects Underlying the Gendered Distribution of Tag Questions and Finite Adverbial Clauses.....	189
7.5. The Relation between Gender and other External Factors	192
7.5.1. Gender and Style.....	192
7.5.2. Gender and Power	193
7.5.3. Gender and Group Composition	194
7.5.4. Gender and Surreptitiousness.....	195
7.6. Implications of a Status Explanation of Gender Differences	195
8. Conclusion.....	197
References.....	199