

Contents

Abbreviations	ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgements	xii
Introduction	1
Explanandum: 'The August Revolution'	2
Definition	3
Explanans: Vacuum and the Viet Minh	5
A Historiographical Sketch	6
Existing Explanations	9
Interpretations of Roosevelt's Policy	13
Sources and Ways of Using Them	19
1 A Placid Haven	34
The Japanese Springboard	36
The Pearl of the French Empire	40
Admiral Jean Decoux	45
The Message of the Three	47
General Charles de Gaulle	48
China's Peaceful South	52
The Comrades of the Kremlin	57
Britain's Buffers	58
Roosevelt's People of Small Stature	62
World War II as a Catalyst	65
2 A Nation-in-Waiting	73
Ethnies and Nations	76
Territory and People	80
The Nguyen	82
The Village	83
The Towns	85
Social Classes	85
Peasants and Revolutionary Potential	87
Literati and Mandarins	91
Tradition on Trial	93
Parties and Sects	95
Communism	99
Pro-French and Pro-Japanese	103
Pro-Chinese Groups	105
Reasons for Weakness	106
In Waiting	107
3 The Viet Minh	114
From Party to League	114

	Foundation	119
	Programme, Nation and Class	123
	Viet Nam Doc Lap	125
	Silent Expansion	128
	Repression	132
	Approaches to de Gaulle	135
	The Central Committee	138
	The Centre and South	139
	Prisons	141
	Reasons for Strength	143
	Mobilization of Peasants	144
4	Colliding Plans	156
	The Franco-British Plan	156
	The Sino-US Plan	161
	President Roosevelt's Plan	162
	The Japanese Plan	170
	Allied Plans Collide	173
	The Insurrection Plan	179
5	Deception and False Expectations	188
	Deception	188
	Admiral Halsey's Raid	190
	General Donovan in China	196
	French Expectations	199
	Japanese Expectations	204
	Viet Minh Expectations	207
	Yalta	210
	Forebodings	215
	The Coup	220
	Deception or Just False Expectations?	222
6	End of an Order	238
	Reasons for Failure	239
	Effects of the Coup	246
	Viet Minh Unbound	247
7	A Shadow	255
	Roosevelt Unyielding	256
	Ad Hoc Decisions in Truman's Name	265
	Truman's Decision	269
8	A Nation-State Founded in Famine	281
	Japanese Pragmatism	282
	Tran Trong Kim	286
	Reforms From Above	288
	Famine From Below	292
	The Youth Movement	296
	Puppets or Patriots?	296
9	Two Theatres of War	305
	Lu Han and Chang Fa-kwei	306
	A Diversionary Attack	307
	Project Quail	309

	The 24 March Declaration	314
	A Colonial Army in Exile	317
	Four Generals and One Imbroglio	318
	An Unexpedited Expeditionary Corps	321
	Quarrel between Theatres	324
	Partition at Potsdam	326
	A Rescue Attempt	327
10	Two Strategies of Insurrection	335
	Party Guidelines	336
	The Southern Strategy	340
	Armed Propaganda	343
	A Change of Strategy?	344
	The Danger of a French Return	346
	The Liberated Zone	347
	Seizure of Rice	348
	Was there an Armed Struggle?	349
	Prisoners Set Free	351
	The Intelligentsia	352
	Two Congresses	354
	A Classical Revolution	354
11	August	362
	London and Washington	363
	Paris–Calcutta–Kunming	365
	Chungking	370
	The Japanese	371
	Hue	372
	Saigon	373
	Hanoi	374
	Tan Trao	375
	Floods	378
	The First Insurrections	379
	Revolution in Hanoi	380
	Hesitation in Saigon	382
	The Revolution Spreads	385
	Revolution in Saigon	387
	Abdication in Hue	389
	Democratic Republic	390
	Deplorable Absence of Blood	394
12	Conclusions	408
	Summary	409
	The Power Vacuum	411
	Roosevelt's Role	412
	Party, Front and Ho Chi Minh	413
	Chance or Cleverness?	415
	The Nation	416
	Peasants and Revolutionaries	418
	Town and Country in Revolution	419
	Vietnam or Indochina?	420
	Comparisons	423

Significance	425
References	430
Archives	430
Interviews	431
Printed Document Collections	431
Books and Articles	432
Index	441
Maps
French Indochina	xiv
Tonkin – Bac Ky, or Bac Bo	119
Strategic situation as of late 1944	166
Strategic situation as of early 1945	191
The Liberated Zone in Tonkin	348
Illustrations
Vietnam in the Grip of Japanese Imperialism	75
Stalin Beats Hitler	127