

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword .....	7
INTRODUCTION .....	13
1. Delimitation of the topic .....	13
2. General account of works dealing with verb-particle collocations ..	14
3. Object of the dissertation .....	22

PART ONE

METHODOLOGICAL AND DESCRIPTIVE

I. PRINCIPLES OF ANALYSIS AND DESCRIPTION .....	27
1. Three stages of the cycle of scientific procedures .....	27
2. Inherent and relational features of elements of text .....	29
3. Main currents of modern linguistics .....	30
4. Method followed in the dissertation .....	35
II. ADVERBS, PREPOSITIONS, AND ADVERB-PREPOSITION WORDS .....	37
0. Theorem of the distributional classes of particles within the range of adverbs and prepositions .....	37
1. Theory of distributional relations .....	37
2. Distributional relations among Adverbs, Prepositions and Adverb- preposition words .....	44
2.1. Definitions of relevant positions .....	44
2.2. Table of and evidence for the occurrence of particles .....	46
2.2.1. Evidence for the occurrence of Adverbs in Positions a and c .....	46
2.2.2. Evidence for the occurrence of Prepositions in Positions b and c .....	50

2.2.3. Evidence for the occurrence of Adverb-Preposition words in Positions a , b , and c .....	53
2.3. Restrictive conditions included in the definitions of Positions a and b .....	75
2.3.1. Restrictive conditions for Position a .....	75
2.3.2. Restrictive conditions for Position b .....	82
2.4. Specification of the distributional relations in question and final remarks .....	84
III. THE ADVERBIAL AND THE PREPOSITIONAL FUNCTIONS .....	87
0. Introductory .....	87
1. Exponents of the actual syntactic function of the particle .....	87
2. Determinants of the actual syntactic function of the particle ...	91
3. The function of the particle in Position f .....	96
4. The actual syntactic function of the particle and the communicative function .....	99

PART TWO

HISTORICAL AND CRITICAL

IV. NEOGRAMMATICAL AND PRE-STRUCTURAL METHODS .....	105
0. Introductory (to the whole of Part Two) .....	105
1. Priority given to the criterion of form: H. Sweet.....	107
2. The use of heterogeneous criteria, priority given to the criterion of ‘meaning’, or the syntactic classification of the particles disregarded	113
2.1. J. F. W. Rogers .....	113
2.2. E. Kruisinga .....	114
2.3. J. H. G. Grattan and P. Gurrey .....	115
2.4. L. P. Smith, A. G. Kennedy, M. Bryant; dictionaries of idioms	118
3. Accumulation of facts around the categories of adverb and preposition grasped intuitively .....	121
3.1. H. Poutsma .....	121
3.2. M. Deutschbein .....	126
3.3. N. Bøgholm .....	128
4. Final position of the particle as determined by its close connection with the verb: R. Volbeda.....	129
5. Historical approach to verb-particle collocations.....	137
5.1. W. Van der Gaaf .....	137
5.2. M. H. Roberts .....	138
6. Subdivisions of the adverb and the preposition: G. O. Curme.....	140
7. A set criteria for the identification of the adverb and the preposition: O. Jespersen .....	144

11

8. Final preposition .....	149
8.1. M. B. Charnley .....	149
8.2. E. W. Stevick .....	151
8.3. R. W. Pence .....	152
V. STRUCTURAL METHODS .....	154
1. Substitution classes: C. C. Fries .....	154
2. Modificational criteria: K. Anastasijević.....	161
3. Formal criteria for the phrasal verbs: T. F. Mitchell.....	163
4. Form and meaning in the identification of the adverb and the preposi- tion: G. Dietrich.....	166
5. Logical approach: V. Brondal, R. Magnusson.....	169
6. The problem of 'conversion' .....	174
CONCLUSION .....	180
BIBLIOGRAPHY .....	186
A. Methodological and descriptive works .....	186
B. Sources of linguistic material .....	198
INDEX OF PROPER NAMES .....	202
INDEX OF SUBJECTS.....	205
