

CONTENTS

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS	xvii
MANUSCRIPTS	xix
BIBLIOGRAPHY	xxi

PART ONE

'The wanderings of careful thought'

1. Shelley's notebooks: 'method in his madness'	I
2. The mind and its paths. Philosophy and symbolism in Shelley's poetry	15
3. Thought, Feeling, and Symbols. Necessity and the New Birth	24
4. 'Ariadne'; Love and Intellectual Beauty; Virtue and Power	37
5. Daemons and other 'monsters of his thought'	64
6. Boats. Isles	91
7. The Dome. The Eye and the Star. The Philosophic Imagination	105
8. The Veil. Mutability	120
9. The Cave	147
10. The Dream of Life	169

PART TWO

The wind, the lyre, and the labour

11. Shelley at work: a closer view. 'To a Skylark'	195
12. Shelley and the West Wind	211
13. Italian Platonics and Epipsyichidion	230
14. 'Ginevra': Emilia to Keats	249

15. Adonais: Keats to Intellectual Beauty and the One 255
 16. From Hellas to 'The Triumph of Life' 273

CONCLUSION

17. Poetry and the Power of Mind 305

APPENDIXES

- I. The Bipont Plato: references collated 328
 II. The temptation of Justina: Calderón's episodes:
 Shelley as a translator 329
 III. 'A Midsummer Night's Dream Poem': Sussex,
 Goethe, and Rousseau 334
 IV. Henry Reveley: later achievements of Shelley's engineer 339
 V. (a) Shelley's memoranda on Dante's Convito 340
 (b) Shelley's Italian letters to Emilia Viviani 341
 (c) Shelley's Italian versions of his own poetry 342

INDEX

344