

Contents

- 1 Introducing Plagiarism Beyond Illegitimate Plunder — 1
 - 2 Framing Plagiarism as a Postmodern Negotiation of Authorship and Text Sovereignty — 20
 - 2.1 Authorship and Its Nemeses: Plagiarism as Unoriginal Practice — 21
 - 2.1.1 The Commodification of Literature and the Economic Value of Authorial Attribution — 21
 - 2.1.2 The Extra-Aesthetic Notion of Plagiarism: The Case of Literary Theft — 31
 - 2.1.3 Under Siege: Challenging Textual Integrity and Individual Authorship — 41
 - 2.2 Writing Beyond Petty Theft: Critifiction, ConText, and Neo-Conceptual Writing — 55
 - 2.2.1 “Everything can be said and must be said in any possible way”: Stealing Away With Critifiction and Playgiarism — 55
 - 2.2.2 Disowning Meaning and Male Authority: Feminist Plagiarist ConText — 75
 - 2.2.3 Neo-Conceptual Uncreative Writing of the Twenty-First Century — 90
 - 3 Plagiarism as Writing Practice in US Postmodern Literature — 114
 - 3.1 Practicing Theory With Critifiction: Raymond Federman’s Double or Nothing (1971/1991) — 115
 - 3.2 ConText as Dissident Feminist Writing: Kathy Acker’s Empire of the Senseless (1988) — 134
 - 3.3 Neo-Conceptual Appropriative Writing — 164
 - 3.3.1 Uncreative Writing as Constrained Transcription: Kenneth Goldsmith’s Day (2003) — 164
 - 3.3.2 Appropriating Legal Texts: Vanessa Place’s Tragodia I: Statement of Facts (2010) — 196
 - 3.3.3 Appropriate and Erase: Yedda Morrison’s Darkness (chapter 1) (2009) — 220
 - 4 Conclusion: The Present and Future of Strategic Appropriation in the Arts — 240
- Bibliography — 248
- Index — 283