

CONTENTS

Notes on contributors	viii
Acknowledgments	xi

Introduction: Wittgenstein, language, philosophy of literature	1
WOLFGANG HUEMER

PART I

Philosophy as a kind of literature / Literature as a kind of philosophy	15
--	----

Introductory note to “The Investigations’ everyday aesthetics of itself”	17
STANLEY CAVELL

1 The Investigations’ everyday aesthetics of itself	21
STANLEY CAVELL

2 “But isn’t the same at least the same?”: Wittgenstein and the question of poetic translatability	34
MARJORIE PERLOFF

3 Wittgenstein’s “imperfect garden”: the ladders and labyrinths of philosophy as Dichtung	55
DAVID SCHALKWYK

CONTENTS

4 Restlessness and the achievement of peace: writing and method in Wittgenstein's Philosophical Investigations	75
TIMOTHY GOULD
5 Imagined worlds and the real one: Plato, Wittgenstein, and mimesis	92
BERNARD HARRISON
6 Reading for life	109
JOHN GIBSON
PART II
Reading with Wittgenstein	125
Introduction to "Having a rough story about what moral philosophy is"	127
CORA DIAMOND
7 Having a rough story about what moral philosophy is	133
CORA DIAMOND
8 "The life of the sign": Wittgenstein on reading a poem	146
JOACHIM SCHULTE
9 Wittgenstein against interpretation: "the meaning of a text does not stop short of its facts"	165
SONIA SEDIVY
10 On the old saw, "every reading of a text is an interpretation": some remarks	186
MARTIN STONE

CONTENTS

PART III

Literature and the boundaries of self and sense 209

11 Rotating the axis of our investigation: Wittgenstein's investigations and Hölderlin's poetology 211

RICHARD ELDRIDGE

12 Autobiographical consciousness: Wittgenstein, private experience, and the "inner picture" 228

GARRY L. HAGBERG

13 Monologic and dialogic: Wittgenstein, Heart of Darkness, and linguistic skepticism 251

JAMES GUETTI

14 Wittgenstein and Faulkner's Benjy: reflections on and of derangement 267

RUPERT READ

PART IV

Fiction and the Tractatus 289

15 Facts and fiction: reflections on the Tractatus 291

ALEX BURRI

16 Wittgenstein's Tractatus and the logic of fiction 305

DALE JACQUETTE

PART V

The larger view 319

17 Unlikely prospects for applying Wittgenstein's "method" to aesthetics and the philosophy of art 321

JOSEPH MARGOLIS

Index 347