Preface	IX
CHAPTER 1
Narrow and broad impersonals: Definitions and scope of analysis	1
1. Beyond structural analyses	1
2. Toward a French impersonal functional category	14
3. The French impersonal category	15
4. A constructional proposal	23
5. Recapitulation and discussion	27
6. Outline of the following chapters	29
7. A note on the methodology and data	33
CHAPTER 2
A cognitive approach to French impersonals	37
1. A symbolic view of language	37
1.1 Conceptual semantics	37
1.2 The conceptual base of clause structure	40
1.3 The prototypical coding of clause structure: The transitive clause	43
2. Defocusing strategies	45
2.1 Alternative trajector selection	45
2.2 Identification and delimitation	52
3. Grammatical constructions	56
4. Recapitulation and conclusion	60
CHAPTER 3
The semantic range of il impersonals	61
1. Introduction	61
2. Simple and complex impersonals	62
3. Status of impersonal il	66
3.1 "Dummy" il ?	68
3.2 The field	71
3.3 Semantics and information structure	80

- 4. The semantic range of simple impersonals 82
 - 4.1 Distribution of predicates with simple impersonals 83
 - 4.2 Presence of the setting in the predicates' lexical semantic structure 87
 - 4.3 Comparison with structural accounts 91
- 5. Recapitulation and conclusion 98

CHAPTER 4

Simple impersonals: Patterns of usage 99

- 1. Introduction 99
- 2. Usage and grammar 100
 - 2.1 Usage and idioms 101
 - 2.2 The core and periphery of simple impersonal usage 103
- 3. The core: Existential predicates 109
 - 3.1 Exister 110
 - 3.2 Relative existence: Rester and manquer 117
 - 3.2.1 Rester 118
 - 3.2.2 Manquer 129
 - 3.3 Recapitulation 140
- 4. Il y a: Existence and location 140
 - 4.1 Existence 141
 - 4.2 Location 144
 - 4.3 The field 147
- 5. The periphery: Arriver, venir, passer 150
 - 5.1 Arriver 151
 - 5.2 Venir 157
 - 5.3 Passer 159
- 6. Recapitulation: Simple impersonals 161

CHAPTER 5

Complex impersonals 165

- 1. Introduction. Complex impersonals: Forms and functions 165
- 2. Epistemic evaluation: Reality, events, and propositions 168
- 3. The complex impersonal domain 176
- 4. Complement forms: Events and proposition 186
- 5. Predicates, events, and propositions 189
 - 5.1 Deontic predicates 189
 - 5.2 Evaluative predicates 192
 - 5.3 Epistemic predicates 194
 - 5.4 Occurrence predicates 198
 - 5.5 Recapitulation 209

6.	Impersonal passives	209
7.	Recapitulation and conclusion	217
CHAPTER 6
	Demonstrative impersonals	219
1.	Introduction: Il and ça impersonals	219
2.	Semantic function of demonstratives: Identification, categorization, and evaluation	220
3.	Semantic properties of demonstratives	225
3.1	Ça and flexible reference	226
3.2	A subjective construal of the referent	232
3.3	Ça has no strict cataphoric sense	233
4.	Two impersonal constructions in the copular complement construction	241
5.	Distribution of il and ça impersonals	249
5.1	Il and ça in Les mandarins	249
5.2	Vrai	253
6.	Recapitulation and conclusion	262
CHAPTER 7
	Middle impersonals	263
1.	Introduction	263
2.	French pronominal verbs	268
2.1	Constructions neutres and moyennes	270
2.2	The French “middle domain”	274
3.	From spontaneous events to impersonals	277
3.1	Two main groups of predicates	277
3.2	Conceptual structure of the two classes	281
3.3	Generality and responsibility	284
4.	Two impersonal constructions	288
5.	Discussion	292
6.	Recapitulation and conclusion	298
CHAPTER 8
	Indefinite impersonals	299
1.	Introduction	299
2.	Pronouns and other nominals: Semantic functions	302
2.1	Layered semantic functions	302
2.2	Grounding: Subjectivity and dynamicity	305
2.3	Pronouns as nominals	306
2.4	On : Minimal specification	310

3.	Patterns of use: From personal to indefinite	321
4.	Indefinite impersonals	325
4.1	Minimal delimitation by homogenization	325
4.2	Delimitation by generalization of individual experience (virtualization)	332
5.	Recapitulation and conclusion	341
CHAPTER 9
	Concluding remarks	343
1.	Recapitulation	343
2.	Do we need a French impersonal class?	347
3.	Advantages of the analysis	350
