

CONTENTS

Contributors

PART I THEORY AND RESEARCH

Introduction and review	Peter Trower	1
1. Editorial introduction		14
	Social skills training: A critique and a rapprochement. James P. Curran, Albert D. Farrell and Aimee J. Grunberger	16
2. Editorial introduction		47
	A radical critique and reformulation: From organism to agent. Peter Trower	48
3. Editorial introduction		89
	Public-collective psychological processes and social skills. Rom Harre	91
4. Editorial introduction		110
	Cognitive-social psychological theories and social skills. Richard Wessler	111

5.	Editorial introduction	142
	A control-theory approach to behaviour, and some implications for social skills training. Charles S. Carver and Michael F. Scheier	144
6.	Editorial introduction	180
	Interpersonal effectiveness from a mind- lessness/mindfulness perspective. Mary M. Bandura, Ellen J. Langer and Benzion Chanowitz	182
7.	Editorial introduction	205
	Conversation analysis and social skills training. Malcolm Coulthard	206
PART II PRACTICE
8.	Editorial introduction	226
	Cognition and social inadequacy: Relevance in clinical populations. Michael G. Dow and W. Edward Craighead	227
9.	Editorial introduction	260
	Assessment of cognitions in social skills training. Geoff Shepherd	261
10.	Editorial introduction	284
	Social skills assessment from a rational- emotive perspective. W. Dryden	286
11.	Social skills training from a rational- emotive perspective. W. Dryden	314
	Index	347