

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements

Abbreviations

INTRODUCTION. 9

PART I HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT: DECONSTRUCTION
(FEMALE MODERNISM) TO RECONSTRUCTION
(SIXTIES: EMPIRICISM; SEVENTIES: UTOPIANISM). 25

1 The Threshold of Female Modernism:
Deconstructions of Patriarchal Designs of Madness and Femininity. 25

Contexts: Modernity and Female Modernism. 30

Strategies of Deconstruction 39

a The Disintegration of Authoritarian Forms. Nightwood (1936). . . . 39

*The Crisis of the Paternal Metaphor:
the Demise of the Creation of the Word. 41*

(i) Family Structures: Frankensteinian Fathering and the Return of the Monster 45

Robin Vote: the Madwoman's Rebellion 47

Doctor O'Connor: the Death of Frankenstein. 53

(ii) Narrative Structures: the Deconstruction of "Spatial Form". . . . 56

Displacing the Gender System: Universalizing the Particular 60

b From Imagism to Disrupted Narcissism: HERmione (1926/27; 1981). 63

From Objectivity to Split Identity: Muse into Poet. 69

The Longing for a "Twin Sister": Paralysis and Female Identification 74

c Unsettling the Structure of Passion: Virginia Woolf and Emily Holmes Coleman. 78

Virginia Woolf. 81

Emily Holmes Coleman's The Shutter of Snow (1930) 90

2	The Threshold of the Sixties: Female Madness from the Inside	93
	After Ophelia: Abjection in Intemperate Excess	101
	After the Female Gothic: the Critique of the Social Architecture of Female Identity	118
3	The Threshold of the Seventies: Visionary Madness - Renewal through Re-integration.	126
	Ordeals and Initiations: New Rituals of Descent and Purification	139
	The Geography of the Interior Vision: Hallucinatory Spaces and their Prophetic Import	160
PART II: SYNCHRONIC APPROACHES		167
1	Autobiographies of Women's Madness: Hallucination and Confession	167
	The (M)other: Relational Patterns of Life, Writing and Therapy	179
	Topography or Phenomenology: the World of Madness	194
	The Emergence of Identity	203
2	The Blackness of Female Madness? Colored Communities, White Vision, and the Madwoman.	207
	The Sickness of the Specular Function: the Madwoman as Embodiment of Invisibility and Blackness as Dirt	212
	"Fictions for the Tribe": the Success and Failure of Colored Communities	219
3	Struggles with the Spirit of Place: Localisms in Mad Intertextuality	232
	Plains Madness	241
	Female Madness in the Urbanized Landscape	252
	Homecoming in Exile	256
	 Select Bibliography	261
	 Index	279