

Contents

Preface	1
Introduction
Cooking by the Book	2
Appetizers
Cookery Literature or Literary Cookery	7
Anne K. LeCroy
Main Course, Part One
How to Eat Without Eating:
Anzia Yeziarska's Hunger	27
Tobe Levin
In the Lands of Garlic and Queer Bearded Sea-Things:
Appetites and Allusions in the Fiction of Edith Wharton	37
Cecilia Macheski
The New American Melting Pot[ter]:
The Mysteries of Virginia Rich	50
Lynn Veach Sadler
Spinster's Fare: Rites of Passage in Anita Brockner's Fiction	61
Mary Anne Schofield
Fairy Tale Cannibalism in The Edible Woman	78
Sharon R. Wilson
At Home on the Range: Food as Love in Literature of the Frontier	89
Sue Hart
Recipes, Repasts and Regionalism:
Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings's Cross Creek Cookery and
"Our Daily Bread"	107
Michael P. Dean
From Eggs to Stew: The Importance of Food in Two Popular
Narratives of Betty MacDonald	114
Delmer Davis
Main Course, Part Two
Recipes for Reading: Pasta Salad, Lobster à la Riseholme,
Key Lime Pie	126
Susan J. Leonardi
Who Deserves a Break Today? Fast Food, Cultural Rituals, and Woman's Place	138
Kate Kane
Mourning Among Plenty: Eating Disorders in the Shadow of the Persephone Myth	147
Andrew Stubbs

Creation and Annihilation: Uses of Food in Contemporary French Narrative	159
Lynne L. Gelber
Thoreau and Emerson: Vegetarianism, Bhuddism, and Organic Form	170
Bruce R. Henderson
Looking at Early American Cookbooks from an Inter-Disciplinary Perspective	179
Jody Kolodzey
Eating Our Way Toward Wisdom: M.F.K. Fisher's Oysters	198
Lee Upton
Dessert
Cultural Meaning and Use of Food: A Selective Bibliography (1973-1987)	207
Karen Madeira
Notes on the Contributors	216
Index	220