

Table of contents

Introduction

- Historical syntax: Problems, materials, methods, hypotheses 3
Carlotta Viti

Syntactic change

- Manner deixis as source of grammatical markers in Indo-European languages 35
Ekkehard König
- Time for change 61
Frans Plank

Syntactic reconstruction

- Reconstructing non-canonical argument structure for Proto-Indo-European:
Methodological questions and progress 95
Thomas Smitherman
- An approach to syntactic reconstruction 117
Ilja A. Seržant
- Anatolian morphosyntax: Inheritance and innovation 155
Annette Teffeteller

Historical syntax and corpus linguistics

- Treebanks in historical linguistic research 187
Dag Haug
- Traces of discourse configurationality in older Indo-European languages? 203
Rosemarie Lühr
- Studying word order changes in Latin: Some methodological remarks 233
Lieven Danckaert
- Problematizing syndetic coordination: Ancient Greek 'and' from
Homer to Aristophanes 251
Anna Bonifazi

What role for inscriptions in the study of syntax and syntactic change in the old Indo-European languages? The pros and cons of an integration of epigraphic corpora Francesca Dell'Oro	271
Historical syntax and language contact
The Gulf of Guinea creoles: A case-study of syntactic reconstruction Tjerk Hagemeijer	293
Syntactic diversity and change in Austroasiatic languages Mathias Jenny	317
Register of Subjects	341
Register of Languages	345