

Contents

List of Figures and Tables	vii
Acknowledgements	x
List of Contributors	xi
List of Abbreviations	xii
Introduction Michael D. J. Bintley and Thomas J. T. Williams	1
1 Between Myth and Reality: Hunter and Prey in Early Anglo-Saxon Art Noël Adams	13
2 '(Swinger of) the Serpent of Wounds': Swords and Snakes in the Viking Mind Sue Brunning	53
3 Wreopenhilt ond wyrmfah : Confronting Serpents in Beowulf and Beyond Victoria Symons	73
4 The Ravens on the Lejre Throne: Avian Identifiers, Odin at Home, Farm Ravens Marijane Osborn	94
5 Beowulf's Blithe-Hearted Raven Eric Lacey	113
6 Do Anglo-Saxons Dream of Exotic Sheep? László Sándor Chardonnens	131
7 You Sexy Beast: The Pig in a Villa in Vandalic North Africa, and Boar-Cults in Old Germanic Heathendom Richard North	151
8 'For the Sake of Bravado in the Wilderness': Confronting the Bestial in Anglo-Saxon Warfare Thomas J. T. Williams	176
9 Where the Wild Things Are in Old English Poetry Michael D. J. Bintley	205

10	Entomological Etymologies: Creepy-Crawlies in English Place-Names John Baker	229
11	Beasts, Birds and Other Creatures in Pre-Conquest Charters and Place-Names in England Della Hooke	253
	Index	283