

Contents

Acknowledgements	page ix
Introduction	I
1 Muslim culture, class and controversy in twentieth-century Britain	30
2 Anti-racism, liberalism and class in The Satanic Verses and the Rushdie affair	64
3 The limits of liberalism in the work of Hanif Kureishi	93
4 Locating class in Monica Ali's Brick Lane and its reception	124
5 Creative freedom and community constraint in Nadeem Aslam's Maps for Lost Lovers	154
6 Reason to believe? Five British Muslim memoirs	183
Conclusion	215
Bibliography	221
Index	240