

CONTENTS

	Acknowledgements	vii
	Introduction by Heather O'Donoghue	ix
I	The Devil in Old English Poetry	1
II	The Fall of Man in Genesis B and the Mystère d'Adam	15
III	Doctrinal Influences on The Dream of the Rood	29
IV	The Effect of Typology on the English Medieval Plays of Abraham and Isaac	49
V	Chaucer as Satirist in the General Prologue to The Canterbury Tales	77
VI	Some Non-Medieval Qualities of Piers Plowman	85
VII	The Theme of Christ the Lover-Knight in Medieval English Literature	99
VIII	The Lost Opening to the Judith	119
IX	The Construction of In a Fryht as Y Con Fare Fremede	125
X	The Tearing of the Pardon	131
XI	The Wanderer, The Seafarer and the Genre of Planctus	157
XII	The Ideal of Men Dying with their Lord in the Germania and in The Battle of Maldon	175
XIII	Moral Chaucer and Kindly Gower	197
XIV	Saints' Lives	219
	Index	245