

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION: HUME'S STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM	1
Comments	1
I. HUME'S FIRST ARGUMENT: MORALITY MOVES US TO ACTION, WHILE REASON DOES NOT	5
Hume's first premiss: reason cannot alone move us to action	5
Hume's second premiss: knowledge of morality can move us to action	9
Hume's conclusion: morality not discovered by reason	10
Comments	10
II. HUME'S SECOND ARGUMENT: 'REASONABLE' AND 'UNREASONABLE' CANNOT BE APPLIED TO ACTIONS	17
Hume's first premiss: 'reasonable' and 'unreasonable' apply only to beliefs	17
Hume's second premiss: actions are 'real existences', not beliefs	17
Hume's conclusion: the morality of actions not discerned by reason	18
Hume's 'indirect' proof of his conclusion	18
Two 'abusive' senses in which actions and passions may be reasonable or unreasonable; firstly, they may be caused by reasonable or unreasonable beliefs about (a) matters of fact	19
Secondly, they may be caused by reasonable or unreasonable beliefs about (b) matters of right	19
The second 'abusive' sense: actions may be reasonable or unreasonable in that they cause reasonable or unreasonable beliefs	19
Comments	20
III. INTERLUDE: HUME'S GENERAL EPISTEMOLOGY	27
Hume's account of conception	27
Comments	29

Hume's account of judgement	31
Comments	32
Hume's account of argument: (a) Demonstrative argument	34
Comments	35
(b) Inductive or probable argument	40
Comments	41
IV. MORALITY NEITHER (A) SUSCEPTIBLE OF DEMONSTRATION NOR (B) A MATTER OF FACT	47
Comments	47
A. MORALITY NOT SUSCEPTIBLE OF DEMONSTRATION	48
Morality not one of the four philosophical relations which Hume thinks give rise to demonstration	48
Comments	48
Morality not a new relation, other than the four philosophical relations Hume has mentioned	52
Comments	53
Hume's examples	57
Comments	58
B. MORALITY NOT A MATTER OF FACT	59
Comments	60
V. HUME'S FOURTH ARGUMENT: OF OUGHT AND IS	69
Hume's view	69
Comments	69
The fact/value gap: independent treatment of the problem	74
VI. ARGUMENTS FROM THE ENQUIRY	83
Section I and Appendix I: the place of reason and sentiment	83
Comments	84
Hume's five arguments from the first Appendix to the Enquiry : (1) Morality consists neither in a relation, nor in a matter of fact	88
(2) We must be acquainted with all the facts about an action, before we pronounce upon its morality	89
Comments	90
(3) Morality not a quality of actions	95
Comments	95

(4) All the relations possessed by actions may be possessed by inanimate objects	97
(5) No reason can be given why we desire morality	97
Comments	97
VII. HUME'S POSITIVE CONCLUSIONS	99
A. A TREATISE OF HUMAN NATURE, BOOK III, PART I, SECTION II	99
Comments	100
B. HUME'S POSITIVE VIEW IN AN ENQUIRY CONCERN- ING THE PRINCIPLES OF MORALS	103
C. THE CAUSES OF APPROVAL AND DISAPPROVAL	103
Comments	105
D. FIVE VIEWS THAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN HUME'S	110
(1) Moral judgements are about the judger's feelings	110
(2) Moral judgements are about the feelings of mankind	113
(3) A moral sense theory	115
(4) A non-propositional theory	117
(5) Moral judgement a species of feeling	120
INDEX	127