

Contents

PART ONE. THE COMING OF THE WAR

1. Yugoslavia Between the Wars 3
Historical background, 3. Government and politics, 1918–1939, 8.
Economic and social problems, 1919–1939, 12
2. On the Eve of War 22
The Cvetković-Maček Agreement, 22. Growing economic difficulties, 25. German advances in southeastern Europe, 28. Yugoslavia joins the Tripartite Pact, 34. The Revolt of March 27, 1941, 43. The unsolvable tasks, 47
3. Invasion and Collapse 54
The Yugoslav defense plans, 55. The Axis attack, 64. The military and political collapse, 70. The armistice of April 17, 1941, 73. Who was responsible?, 75. The Communists and the April War, 79. The fundamental causes of the collapse, 84. The April War and ultimate Allied victory, 86
4. Partition and Occupation 89
The Partitioning, 91. German systems of control, 95. Italian systems of control, 101. The Independent State of Croatia, 105. The Serbian puppet government, 108

PART TWO. THE ARMY OF THE HOMELAND

5. Early Stages of the Wartime Chetnik Movement 115
The traditional Chetniks until 1941, 115. The beginnings of the wartime Chetnik movement, 122. The Pećanac Chetniks under occupation, 126. Draža Mihailović, 129. The start of armed resistance, 132. The Chetniks achieve legitimacy, 142. Growing conflict between Chetniks and Partisans, 145. The Serbian nationalist resistance outside Serbia, 155. The government-in-exile and armed resistance, 162

6. Chetnik Objectives and Organization 166
 The main objective: Great Serbia, 166. The military organization, 178. Political organization and propaganda, 185. Chetnik modes of thinking and behavior, 191
7. The Chetniks and the Foreign Enemy 196
 The policy of ambivalence in Serbia, 196. The Major Dangić incident, 206. Collaboration with the Italians in Montenegro, 209. Collaboration with the Italians in Croatia, 213. Collaboration with the Italians in Slovenia, 220. Collaboration with the Croatian Ustasha state, 226. The Battle of the Neretva River and its aftermath, 231. Chetnik terror, 256
8. The Government-in-Exile and Relations with the British 262
 The government-in-exile to January 1942, 262. The Jovanović cabinet, 270. British activity regarding Yugoslavia, 1941-1942, 281. The collaboration issue, 288. British material and financial aid to the Chetniks, 301. The government-in-exile after June 1943, 303
- PART THREE. DECLINE AND DISASTER
9. From the Italian Collapse to the Battle for Serbia 315
 Change in the German attitude toward the Chetniks, 317. Chetnik-German collaboration agreements in Serbia, 321. Informal collaboration in Serbia, 337. Collaboration outside Serbia to October 1944, 348
10. Relations with the Allies 359
 The British break with the Chetniks, 359. Hopes of salvation from the United States, 372. Hopes of an alliance with Soviet forces, 389
11. The Loss of the Serbian Base 397
 The congress at Ba, 399. The coming battle for Serbia, 407. Collapse of German-Chetnik defenses in western Serbia, 411. Soviet forces enter Serbia, 417. The Chetniks withdraw from Serbia, 421. Lukačević splits off from Mihailović, 425
12. The Final Months 429
 Further overtures to the Allies, 430. Continued collaboration with the Germans, 432. Communist plans to trap Mihailović, 437. Return to Serbia or go to Slovenia?, 440. Djurišić's ill-fated move, 446. The last days at Vučjak Mountain, 449. Toward Serbia and final disaster, 453. Mihailović is caught, 458
- Conclusion 465
 General Mihailović: a portrait, 465. The consequences of defeat, 471