

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction	1
1. Two Texts, Two Hands, Two Looks
Bitextual theory and the marriage of image and text	9
Readers, viewers, texts	12
The artist as critic: five dialogic relationships for image and text	14
2. Contextual/Bitextual: Aesthetes, Socialists, Journalists
Socialists and the art of the arts-and-crafts book	26
Aesthetes and the art of the art-nouveau book	31
Journalists and the art of the mass-produced book	35
Books and backgrounds: technologies, markets, theories	40
Sex and the art of the book	45
Illustrations	50
3. Quotation
Journalism and the construction of the real	54
Realism and romance: the fin-de-siècle adventure tale	56
I. 'You know my methods': the illustrator's Sherlock Holmes	58
II. Adventure on the edge of empire: Black Heart and White Heart	70
III. Ironic adventures: representation and disruption in Perfervoid	74
Illustrations	86
4. Impression
Androgynous beauty and the aesthetic imagetext	91
Consuming passions and consummating environments	94
I. Bitextual couple, bisexual Sphinx : Ricketts, Wilde, and the decadent art of seduction	94
II. Bitextual marriage: Margaret Armour and W.B. Macdougall	107
Illustrations	121

5. Parody
Dazzling travesties: decadent art and parodic illustration	127
Representation and authority: pictorial critique and textual disruption	129
I. Salome and sexual/textual politics: the Wilde dance of Aubrey and Oscar	130
II. Fringilla : impression, quotation, parody	146
III. Jump-to-Glory Jane : one man's satire is another man's saint	149
Illustrations	158
6. Answering
An architectonics of answerability	167
Communal aesthetics and the folk-arts revival	171
I. Art, politics and dreams: The Well at the World's End	172
II. The Were-Wolf : decadent man answers New Woman	184
III. A Book of Ballads : Alice Sargant, William Strang and the Celtic revival	189
Illustrations	197
7. Cross-Dressing
Bitextual identity and the androgynous ideal: the transvestism of the text	203
Cross-dressing and bitextual politics	207
I. William Strang: the artist as woman as hero	209
II. Laurence Housman: homosocial solidarity and bitextual art	214
III. Aubrey Beardsley: cross-dressing comes out of the closet	226
Illustrations	241
8. Entr'acte	247
Appendix
Select Annotated Bibliography of First-Edition Illustrated books	252
Bibliography	278
Index	291