

Contents

List of illustrations	viii
List of contributors	ix
Preface: the importance of China	xiv
List of abbreviations	xix
PART I
Organizational principles	1
1 The CCP and the one-party state	3
Kerry Brown
2 State power and governance structures	12
Bo Zhiyue
3 The role of the PLA	27
Dennis J. Blasko
PART II
Policy areas	39
4 Economics	41
Hongyi Lai
5 Justice	53
Margaret Y.K. Woo
6 Health and social policy	67
Jane Duckett
7 Education and culture	78
Janette Ryan

8	Internal security Murray Scot Tanner	88
9	Defence and foreign policy Jingdong Yuan	97
PART III Political processes		107
10	Political representation Tony Saich	109
11	Political participation Baogang He	120
12	Political opposition Merle Goldman	131
13	Central-local relations Linda Chelan Li	143
14	Nationalism Elena Barabantseva	153
PART IV Contemporary issues		165
15	Social change and inequality Kun-Chin Lin and Tao Ran	167
16	Corruption Andrew Wedeman	177
17	Human rights Robert Weatherley	187
18	The environment Elizabeth C. Economy	199
19	Social unrest Marie-Eve Reny and William Hurst	210
20	Separatism Michael E. Clarke	221

21	Resource shortages	234
	Shen Lei, Tian-Ming Gao and Li Gao
22	Media and the internet	243
	Gary Tang and Simon Shen
23	Globalization and individualism	253
	Doug Guthrie
	Conclusions: China's transition and the world	264
	Chris Ogden
	Bibliography	270
	Index	307