

Contents

	page
Acknowledgements	ix
List of Abbreviations	xi
INTRODUCTION: THE PLACE IN THE FOREST	1
1 DEFOE AND THE BOUNDARIES OF MIDDLE-CLASS UNDERSTANDING	 7
Narrative Stratification and the Understanding in Robinson Crusoe	 8
The Island Credo	16
The Liberty of the Text	20
Narrative Stratification and the Understanding in Moll Flanders	 26
The Functions of Defoe's Editors	36
Journal of the Plague Year and the Boundaries of Middle- class Understanding	 39
2 BETWEEN DOGMATISM AND SCEPTICISM: CLARISSA'S MIXED GOVERNMENT	 54
Clarissa's Mixed Government	54
Private Vice in Conflict and Characterisation	58
The Dogmatist's Answer to Scepticism and Infidelity	72
The Dialogue of the Pen and the Pastoral Ideal	77
Narrative Stratification and Epistolary Pyrrhonism	83
Mixed Socratic Dialogue and Suspension of Judgement	94
3 TOM JONES : FIELDING'S NOVEL ON NOTHING FOR EVERYONE	 108
The Knowledge of Nothing	109
The Non-Omniscient Reader	117
The Moral Sense of Nothing	126
Belief in Anything	138
Historical Faith and Aesthetic Delusion	150
Human Nature and Broad-Bottom Politricks	158

Contents

4 STERNE'S SCEPTICISM OF SCEPTICISM, OR THE BEGINNING OF GENTEEL REALISM	167
Opinions and Things	168
A Matter of Proportion	180
Three Kinds of Imitation and a Question of Time	186
Line and Digression	194
The Transition to the Nineteenth-century Novel	200
A True Son of the Church	205
CONCLUSION: THE MISCELLARIAN RACE	221
Notes and References	243
Bibliography	261
Index	266