

Contents

Preface	vii
1. Introduction	I
A World of Events	I
Descriptive Versus Revisionary Approaches	3
Science and Philosophy	4
The Quest for a Unified Theory	8
2. Descriptive Metaphysics	II
Aristotle's Conception of Substance	II
Strawson and Davidson on Substance	14
Whitehead and Quine: Critique of Ordinary Language
Philosophy	17
Haack and the Conceptual Invariance Thesis	24
Heil on Language and Substance	26
3. The Influence of Modern Physics	3I
Historical Perspective	3I
Maxwell's Electromagnetic Field	34
Einstein-Minkowski Space-Time	37
The Early Quantum Theory	43
The State of a Unified Theory	46
4. The Revisionary Theory of Events	48
Whitehead's Early Ontology of Events	48
Whitehead's Later Process Ontology	54
Russell's Analysis of Matter	60
Quine's Events and Physical Objects	63
Objections Considered	67

5. The Theory of Extension	70
Whitehead's Theory of Cosmic Epochs	70
Contemporary Cosmology and the Multiverse Hypothesis	74
Affinities and Contrasts Explained	79
Critical Evaluation	82
6. The Problem of Time	87
Instrumentalism and Quantum Ontologies	88
Special and General Relativity Reconsidered	95
Presentism, Eternalism and the Growing Block Universe	98
Problems within Whitehead's View	102
Time and Unification	107
7. Philosophical Implications	109
The Mind-Body Problem	110
Perception and Causation	114
Free Will	121
Personal Identity	123
Moral Agency	125
Conclusion	127
Notes	131
References	149
Index	160