

CONTENTS

Preface	ix
I. THE TEMPER OF THE 1920S	3
1. The Old Gang and the New	3
2. The Bohemian	15
3. The Expatriate	25
4. The Text: Ezra Pound's Hugh Selwyn Mauberley	36
II. THE WAR AND THE POSTWAR TEMPER	47
1. The War to Save Ideals	47
2. The Nightmare	51
3. "I Had Seen Nothing Sacred"	57
4. The Unreasonable Wound	66
5. "An Old Bitch Gone in the Teeth"	76
6. The Text: Hemingway's The Sun Also Rises	80
III. THE VERY YOUNG	86
1. Vanity Fair : Handbook for the Sophisticate	86
2. The Young Cynic and the Moon-Calf	93
3. "Her Sweet Face and My New Clothes"	100
4. "The Rich Are Different"	108
5. The Text: Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby	111
IV. FORMS OF TRADITIONALISM	120
1. Using the American Past	120
2. Emerson, Whitman, and the Silhouette of Sweeney	123
3. Impressionistic Versions of American History	131
4. Humanism: the "Classical" Past	139
5. The "Southern" Past	145
6. The Text: Willa Cather's Two Worlds	153

V.	FORMS OF EXPERIMENT AND IMPROVISATION	163
1.	The Image and Last Year's Magazines	163
2.	Some "Imaginary Gardens with Real Toads in Them"	175
3.	The Color and Shape of the Thing Seen: Gertrude Stein	186
4.	"Cry II! II! II! Forever . . ."	196
5.	"Pure Psychic Automatism": Some Extremes of Improvisation	206
6.	Mr. Zero and Other Ciphers: Experiments on the Stage	216
7.	The Text: Hart Crane's The Bridge : The Crisis in Experiment	223
VI.	SCIENCE AND THE "PRECIOUS OBJECT"	240
1.	The Problem	240
2.	The Technological Fallacy	250
3.	The Pre-Industrial Illusion	262
4.	The Affair of Dayton, Tennessee	271
5.	Science, Poetry, and Belief	277
6.	The Text: T. S. Eliot's The Waste Land	291
VII.	CRITIQUES OF THE MIDDLE CLASS	304
1.	The Booboisie	304
2.	Philistine and Puritan	314
3.	The Midwest as Metaphor	327
4.	The Liberals and the Public Life of the Middle Class	335
5.	The Anarchist and the Radical Hope	346
6.	Sacco and Vanzetti as Leftist Heroes	357
7.	The Text: Sinclair Lewis's Babbitt	364
VIII.	SOME PERSPECTIVES ON THE 1920S	371
1.	The Snow of 1929	371
2.	"Spirits Grown Eliotic"	380
3.	The Uses of Innocence	388
	Biographies	395
	Chronology, 1915-1932	424
	Selected Bibliography	431
	Text of Hugh Selwyn Mauberley by Ezra Pound	435
	Index	451