

Contents

Preface, vii

Prologue, 1

- 1 The Curtain Rises . . . and Falls, 7
- 2 The Curtain Rises Again, 28
- 3 Enter the American Playwright, 39
- 4 The Setting and the Action, 1800–1850, 56
- 5 Enter the American Actor, 80

CONTENTS

- 6 Melodrama Takes Center Stage, 104
American Playwriting, 1800–1850
- 7 The Setting at Mid-Century, 129
The United States and its Theatre in 1850
- 8 The Golden Age of American Acting, 144
- 9 The Popular Theatre Grows Up—and Captivates the Crowd, 181
- 10 Melodrama Continues to Star—
with a Rival in the Wings, 201
American Playwriting, 1850–1890
- 11 Realism Begins to Upstage Melodrama, 223
American Playwriting at the Turn of the Nineteenth Century
- 12 The Lively Scene at the Close of the Nineteenth Century, 241
- 13 The Lively Scene in Acting, 260
- 14 Attending the Theatre in 1902, 287
- 15 The Theatrical Renaissance of the Twentieth Century, 297
- 16 The New Playwriting, 324
- 17 Enter the Motion Picture, 346
- 18 Triumph and Tragedy, Comedy and Failure, 370
Developments, 1920–1940
- 19 Playwriting Between Two World Wars, 410
- 20 Bright Lights, Then Curtain, 433
Developments, 1940–1960
- 21 The Phoenix in Flames, 469
Developments of the 1960s
- Selected Bibliography, 508
- Index, 516