

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments	9
Dobrota Pucherová and Róbert Gáfrik Introduction: Which Postcolonial Europe?	11
Part I: Post-Communist, Post-Socialist, Post-Soviet, Post-Dependence: Preliminary Considerations on East-Central European Un-Homing
Madina Tlostanova Postcolonial Theory, the Decolonial Option and Postsocialist Writing	27
Benedikts Kalnačs Postcolonial Narratives, Decolonial Options: The Baltic Experience	47
Cristina Sandru Joined at the Hip? About Post-Communism in a (Revised) Postcolonial Mode	65
Emilia Kledzik Inventing Postcolonial Poland: Strategies of Domestication	85
Part II: The Ghosts of the Past: Post-Communist Rewriting of National Histories
Bogdan Ștefănescu Filling in the Historical Blanks: A Topology of the Void in Postcommunist and Postcolonial Reconstructions of Identity	107
Adriana Raducanu Confessions from the Dead: Reading Ismail Kadare's Spiritus as a 'Post-Communist Gothic' Novel	121
Dobrota Pucherová Trauma and Memory of Soviet Occupation in Slovak (Post-)Communist Literature	139

Natalie Paoli 'Let My People Go': Postcolonial Trauma in Oksana Zabuzhko's The Museum of Abandoned Secrets	161
Edit Zsadányi Voicing the Subaltern by Narrating the Communist Past through the Focalization of a Child in Gábor Németh's 'Are You a Jew?' and Endre Kukorelly's 'The Fairy Valley'	175
Part III: Place and Displacement in (Post-)Communist Narratives and Cityscapes
Irene Sywenky Geopoetics of the Female Body in Postcolonial Ukrainian and Polish Fiction	197
Tamás Scheibner Building Empire through Self-Colonization: Literary Canons and Budapest as Sovietized Metropolis	215
Xénia Gaál The City of K. (Königsberg/Kaliningrad) as a Cultural Phenomenon: Cultural Memory, the Myth and Identity of the City	243
Dorota Kołodziejczyk The Organic (Re)Turn — Ecology of Place in Postcolonial and Central/Eastern European Novel of Post-Displacement	261
Part IV: Imagining the Orient in Central European Communist Travel Writing
Róbert Gáfrik Representations of India in Slovak Travel Writing during the Communist Regime (1948–1989)	283
Martin Slobodník Socialist Anti-Orientalism: Perceptions of China in Czechoslovak Travelogues from the 1950s	299

Agnieszka Sadecka

A Socialist Orientalism? Polish Travel Writing on India in the 1960s 315

Part V: Between the East and the West: The Colonial Present

Mykola Riabchuk

Ukrainian Culture after Communism:
Between Post-Colonial Liberation and Neo-Colonial Subjugation 337

Dariusz Skórczewski

Trapped by the Western Gaze: Contemporary European Imagology and Its Implications for East and South-East European Agency — a Case Study 357

Jagoda Wierzejska

Central European Palimpsests: Postcolonial Discourse in Works by Andrzej Stasiuk and Yurii Andrukhovych 375

Contributors 399