

Contents

1. Reality, Thought, and Language	1
Two Sources of Metaphysical Scepticism	1
The Saussurian Revolution	5
The Discrimination of Fictions	13
The Complexities of Parole	16
The Errors of Rendering to Langue What Belongs to Parole	24
2. Exploring the Speech-act	33
The Foundations of Speech-act Theory	33
Speech-act Theory and the Interpretation of Meaning	35
Cohesiveness, Coherence, and Discourse Analysis	50
Intention	58
3. The Contexts of Meaning and the Contexts of Significance	63
Intrinsic and Extrinsic Commentary	63
The Principles of Consonance	68
Literary and Non-literary Discourse	72
The Several Dimensions of Context	78
4. The Authorial and Generic Dimensions	82
The Authorial Dimension	83
The Generic Dimension	92
Fiction	99
5. The Collective, Specific, and Textual Dimensions	106
The Collective Dimension	107
The Specific Dimension	112
The Textual Dimension	115
6. Clarifications, Parallels, Distinctions	123
What We Question, What We Don't, and How Sure We Can Be	123
Approaches Subsumed in a Koinonoetic Theory of Interpretation	131
Extrinsic Commentary	136
Future-oriented Discourse	153

7. Conclusion	157
Interpretive Principles	157
Another Look at the Value of Critical and Interpretive Commentary	163
Appendix: A Closer Look at Deconstruction at Work	171
References	181
Index	188