

CONTENTS

Chapter	Page
I. INTRODUCTORY Byron and drama. Importance of poetic drama. The romantic period: drama; theatre. Byron: previous research and the position today. Object of my study; proposed approach. Legitimate and illegitimate Byron	1
II. BIO-CRITICAL (A) Examination of Byron's interest in drama and theatre, as revealed in his activities as: translator, amateur actor, theatre-goer, member of Drury Lane Theatre Sub-Committee of Management, dramatic and theatrical writings 1801-17	19
III. BIO-CRITICAL (B) Notes on Byron's views on drama and theatre. Examination of his opinions of dramatists and actors	76
IV THEORETICAL General view of Byron's dramatic compositions. Notes on (a) factual data, (b) theatrical aspects of: Marino Faliero, The Two Foscari, Sardanapalus, Werner, Manfred, The Deformed Transformed, Cain, Heaven and Earth, The Blues.. . . .	102
V. PRACTICAL: LONDON Examination of the metropolitan productions of Byron's dramas. General survey. Marino Faliero. The Two Foscari. Sardanapalus. Manfred. Werner.. . . .	152
VI PRACTICAL: BRISTOL Examination of the productions of Byron's dramas in Bristol: Marino Faliero. Werner. Sardanapalus (1834). Manfred. Werner. Sardanapalus (1876)..	257
VII PRACTICAL: ELSEWHERE Examination of the productions of Byron's dramas in the British Isles and abroad: The Provinces (pre-Macready; Macready; Coleman; Calvert; Monck). America. Germany. Some other countries	297
VIII CONCLUDING — 1952 Reasons for Byron's unpopularity; resulting task. Byron's contribution to the development of modern drama and theatre: influence of his dramas; their qualities. The position today; possibilities of revival, in relation to modern media and trends	327
IX EXPERIMENTAL APPROACHES Emergence of the new experimental theatre: problems and possibilities. Some Byron productions considered: Stanislavsky, Grotowski, others, Triple Action.	336
BIBLIOGRAPHY	380

ILLUSTRATIONS

Number	Facing Page
I.	A playbill of the first performance of a play by Byron: Marino Faliero , at Drury Lane Theatre, April 25, 1821. (From the collection of playbills at the British Museum, Vol. 53.) 159
II.	Drury Lane Theatre, 1867. The Doge of Venice , the final scene. (From The Illustrated London News , November 23, 1867, p. 561.) 175
III.	Princess's Theatre, 1853. Sardanapalus . View of the city of Nineveh (Act I). (From the original designs to Charles Kean's production in the possession of the Victoria and Albert Museum.) 196
IV.	Princess's Theatre, 1853. Sardanapalus . The Hall of Nimrod: thunder (Act III). (From The Illustrated London News , June 18, 1853, p. 493.) 197
V.	Princess's Theatre, 1853. Sardanapalus . Interior of the Palace (Act V). (From the original designs to Charles Kean's production in the possession of the Victoria and Albert Museum.) 198
VI.	Princess's Theatre, 1853. Sardanapalus . Conflagration of the Palace (the final scene). (From the original designs to Charles Kean's production in the possession of the Victoria and Albert Museum.) 199
VII.	Duke's Theatre, Holborn, 1877. Sardanapalus . A scene representing Sardanapalus and Myrrha. (From the Sporting and Dramatic Review , January 19, 1878.) 202
VIII.	Drury Lane Theatre, 1863. Manfred . The Witch of the Alps (Act II, Scene 2). (From The Illustrated London News , October 17, 1863, p. 389.) 215
IX.	Macready as Werner (in Act I, Scene 1). Engraving by C.W. Sharp after a portrait by Daniel Maclise (1852). (From the collections of the Victoria and Albert Museum.) 230
X.	A playbill of the European premiere of Werner , at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, January 25, 1830. (From the collections of playbills at the British Museum, Vol. 206.) 266

Number	Facing Page
XI. A contemporary drawing of an early performance of Werner , with Macready, representing the scene in Act V, where Gabor discovers the murder of Stralenheim.	267
XII. Booth's Theatre, New York, 1876. Sardanapalus , the principal actors. (From: G.C.D. Odell, Annals of the New York Stage (1938), x, 172.)	317
XIII. A playbill of Cain . Theatre of the 13 Rows, Opole, 1960.	354
XIV. Theatre of the 13 Rows, Opole, 1960. Cain . Act III: After the murder of Abel.	355
XV. Triple Action Theatre, London, 1972. The Deformed Transformed	376
XVI. Triple Action Theatre, London, 1972. The Deformed Transformed	377