

Table of Contents

Preface.....	vii
Acknowledgements.....	xi
PART ONE: BACKGROUNDS.....	1
1. Doing the Critics in Different Voices.....	3
D.W. Griffith's Intolerance : the evolution of a received critical view
2. Writing in the Dark.....	21
Joseph Conrad: glimpses of the late 19th-early 20th- century European zeitgeist , the genesis of a literary artist, and Heart of Darkness
3. Finding it in the Movies.....	37
American culture in transition: European influences and D.W. Griffith's metamorphosis from littérateur to cinéaste
4. Forging a Language.....	47
The movies and D.W. Griffith: the birth of an art and an artist
PART TWO: INTOLERANCE, HEART OF DARKNESS AND MODERNISM	63
5. Beginning to See the Light.....	65
Preliminary kinships: the Intolerance prologue and the Heart of Darkness connection

6.	Here Comes Everybody	79
	Griffith's Prologue and semantic techniques
7.	Shadows at the Door	105
	Intolerance (Act One) and Heart of Darkness : the spectre of evil
8.	Still the Moving World; or, Footloose in History.....	133
	Intolerance (Act Two and Epilogue) and Heart of Darkness : moralist art among the ruins
	Appendix.....	161
	Synopses – reconstructed in continuity – of the four stories in Intolerance
	Selected Bibliography.....	183
	Index	199