

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION	PAGE xxiii
------------------------	---------------

PART I

CHAPTER I

General sketch of conditions, 1. The Augustan Histories and their writers, 2. Lampridius, author of the Life of Elagabalus, 4. First attempts at criticism, 4. Modern criticism, 4. Latin sources: Marius Maximus, 5. Greek sources: Dion Cassius, Xiphilinus, 7. Herodian, 8. General attack on the authenticity of the "Lives," 9. Mommsen's opinion, 10. Peter, Richter, Dessau, Seeck, Klebs, Kornemann, 11-15. Italian opinion, 15. General opinion of the biographies, 16. Reasons for the tainted sources, 18. Church historians, 19; Jurisprudence, 21. Numismatists, 21. Object of this work, 23.

CHAPTER II

Emesa, 24. High-Priest Kings, 25. Septimius Severus, 27. Julius Bassianus, 27. Julia Domna's marriage, 28. Caracalla's birth, 29. Septimius Severus, Emperor, 30. Julia's court, 31. Maesa comes to Rome with her family, 31. Marriage of Soaemias, 34. Birth of Elagabalus, 35. Paternity of Elagabalus, 35. Birthplace of Elagabalus, 36. Julia Mamaea, her marriage, and her connection with Caracalla, 38. Macrinus Praetorian Praefect, 41. His plot against Caracalla, 42. Election of Macrinus, 43. Julia's position, 43. Her work to recover the empire, 43. Banishment and death, 44.

CHAPTER III

Maesa's return to Emesa, 46. Macrinus' weakness and tyranny, 47. The legion at Emesa, 48. Bassianus High-Priest, 49. Worship of Elagabal, 50. Bassianus' religious outlook, 51. Eutygianus and Gannys corrupt the soldiers, 53. Date of the proclamation of Elagabalus, 55. Macrinus astonished, 56. The Empire in favour of Bassianus, Julian's expedition, 59. Deserters to Bassianus, 61. Macrinus at Apamea, and Diadumenianus' elevation, 63. Macrinus retires to Antioch, 66. Bassianus wins allegiance of soldiers at Apamea, 67. Dion on the dates of proclamation and battle, 67. Arval Brothers' meeting, 68. Wirth, 69. Battle of Immae, 69. Antonine at Antioch, 71. Macrinus' escape, 72. Capture and death, 74. Character of Macrinus, 75.

LIFE OF ELAGABALUS

CHAPTER IV

Antonine's refusal to allow the sack of Antioch, 77. Chief minister, 78. Antonine's temperament, 79. Acts of the new Government, 81. Amnesty, 83. Position of the Senate, 84. Delight of Rome, 86. Dismissal of troops, 87. Treasonable attempts and pretenders, 88. Elagabal to accompany the Emperor, 91. Journey to Nicomedia, 92. Winter in Asia Minor, 93. Illness of the Emperor, 94. Xiphilinus on Antonine's religion, 95. Monotheistic or Mithraic not polytheistic, 96. Death of Gannys, 101. Antonine's character, 102. His popularity and his taxation, 104.

CHAPTER V

Date of arrival in Rome discussed, 107. The entry into the city according to Herodian, 110. First marriage, 111. The temples, 112. The scheme for the unifying of religions, 114. The worship, 115. The Eastern cults, 115. Date of scheme discussed, 118. Reasons for its failure, 118. Women in the Senate, 119. Senaculum, 121. Lampridius on the Emperor's popularity, 124. Charges against the Administration, 125. Divorce of Julia Paula, 126. Pastimes, 127. Summary, 128. Elagabal's alliance with Vesta, Antonine's with Aquilia Severa, 129. Pomponius Bassus' plot, 131. Antonine divorces Elagabal from Minerva, himself from Aquilia Severa, 132. Sends for Tanit from Carthage, 133. Marries Annia Faustina, 134. Alliance of Maesa and Mamaea, 135.

CHAPTER VI

Lampridius on Alexander, 137. Seius Carus' plot, 139. Military expenditure, 140. Maesa's plan for the adoption of Alexander, 141. The Emperor's reasons for concurrence, 142. Name Alexander accounted for, 144. Date of adoption discussed, 145. Position after adoption, 146. Alexander's titles, 147. Antonine's endeavours, 148. Antonine's resolve to divorce Annia Faustina and disown Alexander, 150. Accusations against the Government, 151. Antonine's attempt to assassinate

CONTENTS

Alexander discussed, 152. Antonine goes to Praetorian camp, 154. Camp conference, 155. Hatred of Maesa and Mamaea testified against Antonine, 157. Mamaea's precautions, 158. Antonine's preparations for suicide, 160. Alexander designated Consul, 160. The Emperor's refusal and reasons for his compliance, 161. Lampridius on Julius Sabinus, 163. Ulpian and Silvinus, 164. Reasons for the murder and the various accounts, 165. Criticism on the above, 170. The treatment of Elagabalus' body, 171.

CHAPTER VII

The Emperor set free to further his cult, 173. The procession, 174. Mismanagement and appointments, 178. Freedmen, 180. Return of Aquilia Severa, 183. Desire for military glory, 184. The names of the Emperor, 185. Activity in building, 186. Military disaffection, its causes and result, 188. Date of Elagabalus' murder and length of reign discussed, 191. Date for renewal of tribunician power discussed, 194. Elagabalus' interest in public affairs, 198. The treatment of inscriptions, 198. Outlook of the Roman world, 200.

CHAPTER VIII

Roman views on matrimony, 203. Elagabalus' marriage with Julia Paula, 205. Position of Julius Paulus, 206. Serviez, etc., on Julia Paula, 207. Dates of this marriage and divorce, 208. Elagabalus' marriage with Aquilia Severa, 211. Vestals discussed, 211. Roman religion, 212. Elagabalus' lack of prejudice, 214. His explanation to the Senate, 215. Family of Aquilia Severa, 215. Probable dates of marriage and divorce, 216-18. Maesa's desire for an alliance with the nobility, 218. Annia Faustina chosen, her family discussed, 222. Her age and her divorce, 223. Further marriages discussed, 224. Elagabalus' return to Aquilia, 225.

PART II

CHAPTER IX

Lampridius' Life of Elagabalus impossible, 227. Elagabalus a psychosexual hermaphrodite, not wicked, 229. The condition quite usual then as now, 229. Virtue a virile quality, not a neurotic negation, 229. The Phallus natural and omnipresent typifies joy and fruitfulness, 230. Elagabalus has strong homosexual nymphomania and every inducement to gratify his feminine instinct, 231. His nature incredibly open and affectionate, 232. Maesa an aggravating factor, 234. Modern authorities on similarly inverted cases to-day, 234. Biblical parallels, Greek instances, modern religious tendencies, 234. Normal intolerance largely hypocritical, 235. The usual instincts of such natures, 235. Elagabalus' love of flowers, feasts, and teasing, 236. His marriages psychologically considered, 238. His castration and desire for an operation which might produce the female organs discussed, 238. Elagabalus' marriage with Hierocles, 239. Hierocles and Zoticus discussed, 239. Comparison with Messalina, 240. Spintries, 240. Elagabalus' love of colour, 241. His frankness, 241. Greek love opposed to effeminacy, 242. Gulick on the psychology, on Christianity, 242. Effeminacy, not homosexuality, disgusts Roman world and gives reason for Elagabalus' downfall, 244.

LIFE OF ELAGABALUS

CHAPTER X

Description of Nero's golden house, 245. Elagabalus compared with Nero, 246. Pastimes, prodigalities, and dress, 246. Extravagances of ritual, 250. Congiaries and games, 251. Table appointments and food, 252. Maecenas' feast, 254. Perfumes, 256. Fish, 258. The spectacles described, 260. Gladiators discussed, 262. Elagabalus' skill as a sportsman, 263. The lotteries, 264. Elagabalus' devices for suicide, 265. The psychology of extravagance, 266.

CHAPTER XI

Elagabalus' piety, 267. Constantine the opponent of other monotheisms, 268. Theories of religion, 269. Civilised religion becomes philosophical, 269. Rome both atheist and credulous, 270. Civic religion leaves the forces of sex and superstition out of count, 270. Gods always necessary to the superstitious, the more mystical the more attractive, 271. Semetic rituals attract the mob, 273. Elagabal exclusive and absorbs other cults, 273. Elagabalus' scheme Erastian, compared with Tudor conception, 273. Elagabalus will not persecute, 276. Religion and castration, 276. Elagabalus no idolator, 277. His mistake in trying to amalgamate the hated Judaism with Roman deities, 277. Marriages of Elagabal, 278. Human sacrifices discussed, 280. The column for the meteorite, 281. Contest between religion and dogma, 282. The numbers of the mob prevail against the rationalists, 284. Rome bored with all Gods, hence Elagabalus' failure, 285.

BIBLIOGRAPHY	289
INDEX	299