

CONTENTS

Preface

Chapter I In Search of a Brave New World

- 1 Franklin D. Roosevelt on the threat of totalitarianism and the four freedoms: January 6, 1941 1
- 2 Roosevelt, Churchill and the Atlantic Charter: August 14, 1941 7
- 3 Policy with regard to the Soviet Union in case of the outbreak of war between the Soviet Union and Germany: June 21, 1941 9
- 4 The Fulbright and Connally resolutions — ‘Second Chance’: September–November 1943 10
  - (a) Congressman Fulbright and the wisdom of creating international machinery adequate to establishing and maintaining a joint and lasting peace: September 20, 1943 11
  - (b) Walter H. Judd on the problem of learning to live together: September 21, 1943 13
  - (c) Senator Tom Connally on the ideal of international peace: October 25, 1943 19
  - (d) Representative William Lemke, a House dissenter: September 21, 1943 23
  - (e) Senator Burton Wheeler, a Senate dissenter: October 29, 1943 25
- 5 Secretary of State Cordell Hull on the hope of postwar cooperation: November 18, 1943 31
- 6 Senator Vandenberg: the conversion of a former noninterventionist: January 10, 1945 36
- 7 FDR Reports on the Crimean Conference: March 1, 1945 44

Chapter II Suspicions About the Future of Soviet Intentions

- 8 Ambassador Harriman sounds the alarm from Moscow: September 1944 55
  - (a) Ambassador Harriman to Harry L. Hopkins on the Soviet change of attitude: September 10, 1944 56
  - (b) Ambassador Harriman to Secretary of State Cordell Hull: September 20, 1944 57
- 9 George Frost Kennan — ‘Russia — seven years later’: September 1944 62
- 10 President Roosevelt expresses concern over Soviet activity in Rumania to Prime Minister Churchill: March 11, 1945 71
- 11 FDR, Churchill and the Polish imbroglio: March 29, 1945 71
- 12 President Roosevelt appeals directly to Joseph Stalin to clarify the Polish situation: April 1, 1945 73
- 13 Stalin replies: April 7, 1945 75

Chapter III President Truman and the Intensification of the Polish Question

- 14 A meeting with Ambassador Harriman and what to do with the Soviets: April 20, 1945 78
- 15 Preparing for Mr Molotov’s visit: April 23, 1945, 2 pm. 81
- 16 The Confrontation: April 23, 1945 84
  - (a) Truman gets tough with Molotov: April 23, 1945 84
  - (b) President Truman to Marshall Stalin: April 23, 1945 86
- 17 Marshal Stalin replies: April 24, 1945 87
- 18 Sumner Welles on departing from FDR’s policy of accommodation towards the Russians — the beginning of the great debate: May 22, 1945 88

Chapter IV The United Nations Debate: Avoiding the Mistakes of the Past

- 19 Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov at the opening of the United Nations Conference in San Francisco: April 26, 1945 93
- 20 President Truman’s address in San Francisco at the closing session of the United Nations: June 26, 1945 97
- 21 Senator Connally appeals to the past in opening the debate on whether or not the United States Senate should ratify the United Nations Charter: July 23, 1945 101
- 22 Senator Wheeler urges caution: July 24, 1945 106

Chapter V Enter the Bomb: Origins of ‘Atomic Diplomacy’

- 23 President Truman’s statement announcing the use of the atomic bomb at Hiroshima: August 6, 1945 112
- 24 President Truman’s special message to Congress on atomic energy: October 3, 1945 115
- 25 The Soviet reaction — through British eyes: December 3, 1945 118

- 26 Bernard M. Baruch's proposals for an Atomic Development Authority: June 14, 1946 120
- 27 Address by Soviet representative Gromyko to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission: June 19, 1946 128
- 28 Molotov on 'Atomic Diplomacy' — a Soviet Perception: October 29, 1946 131

Chapter VI The Problem of National Security

- 29 President Truman's report to the American people on the Potsdam Conference: August 9, 1945 136
- 30 A top secret memorandum prepared by the Joint Chiefs of Staff: September 19, 1945 144
- 31 Secretary of State Byrne's report on the first session of the Council of Foreign Ministers: October 5, 1945 148
- 32 President Truman's restatement of United States foreign policy: October 27, 1945 156
- 33 Eleventh hour efforts to accommodate Soviet fears 161
  - (a) Byrnes on 'Neighboring Nations in One World': October 31, 1945 161
  - (b) Dean Acheson on problems of security and understanding in American-Soviet friendship: November 14, 1945 164
- 34 The State Department gets tough with the Soviets: December 1, 1945 168

Chapter VII The War of Ideas

- 35 Molotov and Stalin prepare the Russian people for the Cold War ahead 172
  - (a) Speech at a meeting of voters of the Molotov electoral area of Moscow: February 9, 1946 173
  - (b) Speech at a meeting of voters of the Stalin electoral area of Moscow: February 9, 1946 179
- 36 An interpretative analysis of future Soviet policy — Kennan's Long Telegram: February 22, 1946 187
- 37 Senator Vandenberg and the Soviet challenge: February 27, 1946 197
- 38 The first public expression of the Truman Administration's new Soviet policy: February 28, 1946 200
- 39 Winston Churchill's 'Iron Curtain' speech at Fulton, Missouri: March 5, 1946 206
- 40 Henry A. Wallace on reconsidering American-Soviet relations: September 12, 1946 209
- 41 Some last thoughts in Moscow 213
  - (a) Stalin answers Sunday Times correspondent Alexander Werth: September 20, 1946 213
  - (b) The American Chargé responds: September 25, 1946 215

Chapter VIII The Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan: The Completion of the American Diplomatic Revolution

- 42 Acheson to Byrnes on the significance of defending Turkey against Soviet aggression — early warnings: August 15, 1946 217
- 43 The traditional British role in Greece and Turkey comes to an end: A frank plea for US aid 219
  - (a) Top secret British aide-mémoire on Greece: February 21, 1947 220
  - (b) Top secret British aide-mémoire on Turkey: February 21, 1947 222
- 44 The Truman Doctrine: March 15, 1947 224
- 45 Legislative origins of the Truman Doctrine 229
  - (a) Testimony of Lincoln MacVeagh, American Ambassador to Greece: March 28, 1947 229
  - (b) Testimony of Edwin C. Wilson, American Ambassador to Turkey: March 28, 1947 243
- 46 George F. Kennan, the Policy Planning Staff, and the origins of the Marshall Plan: May 16, 1947 249
- 47 Memorandum by the Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs on the impending European crisis: May 27, 1947 253
- 48 The Marshall Plan: June 5, 1947 255

Epilogue 258

Suggestions for Additional Reading 260