

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction		7-9
I.	The appellations סָרַךְ , יָחִיד and רַבִּיט	10-16
II.	The Council	16-19
III.	The Priest, the Official (פְּקִיד) and Overseer (מַבְקֵר)	19-21
IV.	Acceptance of new members	21-23
V.	Law and Penalties	23-30
	1) Violation of discipline and disturbance of order	24-29
	a) Infidelity	24
	b) Disturbances in the Assembly	26
	c) Disturbances of the general order	26
	d) Seating in fixed order	27
	e) Absence from the Assembly	29
	2) Ethics and morality	30-34
	a) Lying in relation to money and property	30
	b) Rules of modesty	31
	c) Mutual aid	31
	d) Applying to a court outside of the sect	34
	3) Insult of sect members and leaders	34-38
	a) Abuse of high ranking members and of the priest	34
	b) Abuse of members of the sect	35
	c) Abuse of members' or sect's property	38
	4) Laws of evidence	38-41
	a) Witnesses and proof	38
	b) Reproof of a member in sincerity and on the same day	40
	5) Classes of penalties	41-43
	a) Absolute expulsion	41
	b) Temporary expulsion	42
	c) Exclusion from communal activity	43
VI.	Period of probation for a candidate	43-44
VII.	Renewal of validity of the code	44-45
VIII.	The Founder of the Sect	45
IX.	The differences between the codes of pagan guilds and the code of the Qumran Sect	46-47
X.	The primitive Christian community and the sectarian organizational patterns	48-50

Appendix A :	51-57
I. The Statutes of the Iobacchi (178 CE) (Dittenberger, Sylloge [3] 1109)	51
II. Sections of the Iobacchi code paralleled with the Qumran regulations	55
Appendix B : The Ein-Gedi Community	58-64
Appendix C :	65-69
Adjuration of a Jewish-Christian sect concerning the non-communication of the sacred books to anyone of the Gentiles or to anyone not initiated (Epistle of Peter to James in the Pseudo-Clementine Literature)	65
Appendix D : The Apostolic Tradition (Hippolytus)	70
Appendix E : The recent monograph of Schiffman	71-76
Synopsis : Common traits of Guilds and Associations	77-80
Selected Bibliography	81-86
Abbreviations	87
Indexes	88-100
Authors	88
Subjects	91
Sources	94
Words	99