

Contents

Preface	vii
Acknowledgments	xiii

PART I: TRAVERSING THE BODY OF CLARISSA

1. Clarissa and the Art of the Natural	3
The Weave of Narrative	5
Clarissa's Investment, or The Mantle of Integrity	14
2. Lovelace and the Stages of Art	28
The Displacement of the Other	28
Emptying the Self and Beginning an Interplay	32
The Perils of the Practice of Art	39
Toward the Rape: Venturing a Mastery of Meaning	49
3. The Battle for the Body	56
The Play of Rival Significations	60
The Sources of Melodrama: Pyrotechnics and the Book of Life	65
4. Building a Book into an Empire of Meaning	75
The Choice of Death	75
The Axis of Comedy (and a Temptation to Life)	76
The Will to Power of the Subject	87
Building the Book, 1: A New Body for Clarissa	92
Building the Book, 2: Subjecting the Reader to Personal Correspondence	96
Building the Book, 3: The Incorporation of the "Other"	102
Book-Builder as Con Artist or, Clarissa Goes to a Country Fair	113

PART II: THE RECEPTION OF CLARISSA: A CASE HISTORY OF INTERPRETATION

5. Richardson as Author: Gamester and Master	123
The Umbrage of Editor	125
The Character: Author's Impersonator (and/or) His Trope	130
The Uses of Love: To Interest (and/or) to Instruct	135

6. The Struggles of Interpretation	143
The Virgin Text	147
The Reader as Pygmalion	158
Richardson's Defense of Clarissa, 1: The Position of Judgment	171
Richardson's Defense of Clarissa, 2: Taking Sums	180
Richardson's Defense of Clarissa, 3: Character, Plot, and Theme	189
Richardson's Defense of Clarissa, 4: Taming Time with Corrective Surgery	196
7. The Humanist Sublime: Clarissa as the Agent of a Humanist Ideology	219
Taking the Torch to the Back of the Cave	221
The Navel of the Text	233
Toward the Humanist Sublime	241
A Tail-Piece: The Lady, The Serpent, and The Crown	259
Critical Bibliographies	267
Index	273