

Table of Contents

PART I / Accidental Agency and the Deconstruction of Identity

- 1 Slender Girls in Chong Sams: The Meaning of Racial Difference and Its Absence.....3
- 2 "Charlie Chan is Dead": Scripts of Chineseness in Louis Chu's Eat a Bowl of Tea.....55
- 3 Black Bottoms, Yellow Skin: From Ma Rainey
to Maxine Hong Kingston's Tripmaster Monkey.....79
- 4 (De)Historicizing Beloved: Contingent Political
Agency and Faces in the Butter.....107

PART II / Appropriating the Space of Whiteness

- 5 Josephine Baker: Ethnicity in a Gilded Cage.....153
- 6 Faulkner's Absalom, Absalom! and the Perversion of Racial Mixing.....209
- 7 D.W. Griffith and the Sidewalks of a White Nation.....229
- 8 White Road Rage in Falling Down.....265
- 9 The Ethnic Eyes of the Nation: Mural Art.....289

PART III / Impersonating Whiteness

10	"No accento, as they say": Ethnic Impersonation in "Diagnosis Murder".....	329
11	Elvis, or the Ambivalence of Whiteness.....	363
12	El Vez, or the Mispronouncing of White Iconicity.....	399
	Conclusion.....	431
	Works Cited.....	443