

Contents

Introduction	vii
1. 'All Hated Whiggery': The Fundamental Opposition between Locke's Empiricism and Yeats's Theory of Poetic Inspiration	1
2. 'A Kind of Frenzied Hatred Which is Quite Out Of My Control': Hatred as the Impulse to Create	20
3. Per Amica Silentia Lunae and the Self-distrusting Poems: Inspiration that Arrives 'The Moment I Cease to Hate'	38
4. Sibylline Frenzy Blind: Saeva Indignatio as Gateway to the Wisdom of the Dead	54
5. 'An Intellectual Hatred is the Worst': The Fall, the Antinomies and Abstract Ideas	73
6. Sexual Love and Spiritual Hate: The Antinomies Resolved in the Beatific Vision	90
7. 'Hatred of God may Bring the Soul to God': Yeatsian Hatred as Gnostic Virtue	108
8. Objects of a Hatred that Seeks its own Infinity: Materialism and the Idea of Progress	119
9. 'The Purging away of our Civilization by our Hatred': History as Catastrophe	133
Conclusion	150
List of Abbreviations used in the Notes	155
Notes	156
Bibliography	178
Index	185