

CONTENTS

General Editor's Note Kimball King	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction Ann Wilson	xiii
Chronology Ann Wilson	xvii
Opening the Door for Revolution: Images of Political Action in Magnificence , The Saliva Milkshake , and Weapons of Happiness Paul Haxo	3
From Brass to Crass: Brenton and Hare's Collaborative Plays Brassneck and Pravda Judy Lee Oliva	29
Selected Affinities: Bertolt Brecht and Howard Brenton Janelle Reinelt	39
The Trials of The Romans in Britain Philip Roberts	59
The Romans in Britain : Aspirations and Anxieties of a Radical Playwright Robert F. Gross	71
"Infirm of Purpose": Dynamics of Political Impotence in Thirteenth Night Harry Lane	85

“Crows on the Barbed Wire”: The Politics of Gender in The Genius Ann Wilson	101
Howard Brenton’s Utopia Plays Kimball King	117
“Disentangled Doom”: The Politics of Celebration in Howard Brenton’s Bloody Poetry Sandra Tomc	127
After Words: Berlin Bertie Ann Wilson	145
More Thoughts on Brenton and Berlin Bertie Kimball King	159
Selected Bibliography Ann Wilson	167
Index	177