

Contents

List of Figures	xiii
Note about Translations	xv

Introduction	1
The Discontinuous Chronology of a Social, Literary, and Artistic Phenomenon	8
Charting a Constellation: Drawing Maps and Lines	23
Structuring a Corpus: The Collection	31

I. DEATH AND THE MAIDEN

1. Thinking an Image in Theory and History	41
Exploring an Untimely History: Survivals, Dialectical Images, and Anachronisms	42
Approaching a Paradoxical Vestige	50
The Inconnue in the History of Casts and Death Masks: Benkard's Collection	60
2. 'The Most Poetic Topic in the World'	81
Bringing out the Dead: Le Gallienne's Eroticism as Horror	88
'And From Being Statues They Turn into Phantoms'	94
3. 'White Ophelia Floats Like a Great Lily'	107
'Noyer le poisson': Magritte's Drowned Women and Painted Masks	110
A New Undine	116
Nabokov's 'Inconnue'	120
Marius Grout's Poèmes à l'Inconnue : The Dead Woman between Muse and Christian Liminal Figure	124
Drowned Women and the Watery Corpses of German Expressionism	127

II. THE DEAD WOMAN AND THE PALIMPSEST OF THE CITY

4. The Dead Woman and the Modern City	135
Legibility of an Image, Legibility of the City	137
'The Death-fraught Idyll of the City'	139
The Discourse of Estrangement and Its Literary Treatments 'Fugitive Beauty'	147

The Commodity	165
'A Mythology Takes Shape and Comes Undone'	168
5. 'The City as a Magnified Ghost': A Cartography of Survivals	173
The Morgue	179
The Seine: 'Vieux cimetière fluvial' ('The Old Fluvial Cemetery')	195
Julien Green's Paris	197
Louis Aragon's Aurélien	200
Julio Cortázar's Rayuela (Hopscotch)	209
Patrick Modiano's Des Inconnues (Unknown Women)	213

III. TRACES OF A METAMORPHOSIS: POPULAR IMAGERY, PHOTOGRAPHY, CINEMA, AND THEORY

6. The Inconnue as Popular Icon	221
A Metamorphic Image	224
A Figure of Community and a Political Allegory: From Print to Cinema	229
An Allegory of Modern Allegory	239
Old Ghost, New Haunts	242
7. Man Ray and Aurélien: When Text Meets Image	246
Aurélien and the Project of the Ceuvres Romanesques
Croisées : The Tradition of the Illustrated Book Revisited	249
Illustration as an Empreinte and a Process of Collage: Displacing Representation	256
8. 'Jellyfish at the Cinema . . .'	276
'All that a Heart Desires Can be Reduced to a Watery Figure': Vigo's L'Atalante	280
'An Uncanny Halo': Franju's Les Yeux sans visage	284
'The Imprint of a Duration': Truffaut's Romantic Cinema	288
'The Lament of the Seine'	299
9. 'Emanating as if from the Depths of a Tomb': The Inconnue's Philosophical Lives	305
Blanchot's Inconnue: Literature, Haunting Images, and Fascination	307
Thinking the Image and Thinking Images	311
As She Lies Dying: The Maiden and the Passion of the Image	320
Conclusion	326

Appendix	335
1. Vladimir Nabokov, 'L'Inconnue de la Seine'	335
2. Marius Grout, Poèmes à l'Inconnue	336
3. Maurice Magre, 'Complainte de la Seine'	344
Bibliography	347
Index	365