

Contents

Acknowledgments — V

Introduction

The Cosmopolitan Axis: Agencies and/or Enablers — 1

Part I: Toward a Global Community: The Emergence of the Modern Idea of Literature

- 1 The Divided Legacy of the Republic of Letters: Emancipation and Trauma — 33
- 2 The Fissured Identity of Literature: National Universalism and/or Cosmopolitan Nationalism — 57
  - 2.1 Intertwined opposites — 57
  - 2.2 The emergence of the national literary historiography — 60
  - 2.3 Cosmopolitan patriot and democratic tyrant: Jean-Jacques Rousseau — 68
  - 2.4 Who is authorized to represent “natural communities”? — 74
  - 2.5 Identification by alienation — 79
- 3 The Janus Face of Literary Bildung: Education and/or Self-Formation? — 83
  - 3.1 “Having the other” and “being the other” — 83
  - 3.2 Differences between the Bildung concepts — 84
  - 3.3 Mirroring and interweaving — 89
  - 3.4 Resolving ambiguity, instituting difference — 94
- 4 Who Voices Universal History? Kant’s “Mankind” and/or Herder’s “Nature” — 99
  - 4.1 Introduction — 99
  - 4.2 Kant’s advocacy of mankind — 105
  - 4.3 Herder’s advocacy of nature — 118
- 5 Who Worlds the Literature? Goethe’s Weltliteratur and Globalization — 133
  - 5.1 Comparative literature as the promoter of globalization — 133
  - 5.2 Goethe’s detachment from globalization — 137

- 5.3 Getting out of the crowd: Goethe's elitist cosmopolitanism — 139
- 5.4 The acting out of the traumatic experience — 141
- 5.5 A retroactive reinvestment of Goethe's cosmopolitanism — 146
- 5.6 Goethe's trauma narrative: Repositioning German literature — 148
- 5.7 From exemption to expansion: Toward the Roman imperial cosmopolitanism — 153
- 5.8 Translating the "iron law of kinship" into the "free competition of values": The U.S.-American trauma narrative — 157

Part II: An Observer under Observation: The Cosmopolitan Legacy of Modern Theory

- 6 Interiorizing the Exteriority: The Cosmopolitan Authorization of the Theoretical Truth — 179
- 7 The Narrative of Permanent Displacement: Early German Romanticism and Its Theoretical Afterlife — 195
  - 7.1 Reappropriating the early Romanticist legacy — 195
  - 7.2 The pattern of irritated overcoming: the entangled opponents — 198
  - 7.3 Literature against philosophy: Niklas Luhmann's autopoietic turn — 202
  - 7.4 Passionately committed to the memory of the whole — 203
  - 7.5 The European entangled legacy — 206
  - 7.6 The novel as the epitome of evolutionary necessity — 209
- 8 The Oppositional Literary Transcendental: The Russian Formalist Rewriting of Early Romanticist Cosmopolitanism — 213
  - 8.1 The post-imperial hyphenation and early Romanticist legacy — 213
  - 8.2 Literature's persistent self-exemption – modern literary theory's cosmopolitan operation — 220
  - 8.3 The resurgence of the disempowered law — 224
  - 8.4 Unleashing the force of self-exemption — 227
- 9 The All-Devouring Modern Mind: Bakhtin's Cosmopolitan Self — 235
  - 9.1 Confronting mind with self-displacing life — 235
  - 9.2 A utopian cosmopolitan community — 239
  - 9.3 The authorial operation: expanding the self by consummating the others — 242

- 9.4 A counterfactual compensatory project — 245
- 9.5 The divine and the devalued other – a constitutive interdependency — 250
- 10 Countering the Empirical Evidence: From Immigrant Cosmopolitanism to a Cosmopolitanism of the Disregarded — 257
- 10.1 Abstracting from natural transcendentals — 257
- 10.2 Dis/empowering the cosmopolitan police — 264
- 10.3 At the empowering service of a powerless victim: Emmanuel Levinas — 266
- 10.4 The disabling enablement of the theorist: Maurice Blanchot and Michel Foucault — 272
- 10.5 Empowering the literary transcendental: Jacques Derrida — 281
- 11 Political and/or Literary Community: From Class to Messianic Cosmopolitanism — 285
- 11.1 Singularity – a European mission? — 285
- 11.2 The class cosmopolitanism of Cultural Studies — 291
- 11.3 Cruelly attached to unfathomable singularity — 299
- 11.4 The counter-narrative of singularity — 306
- 11.5 Vanishing mediation — 315
- 12 Literature as Deterritorialization: New Vistas for Democracy? — 319
- 12.1 Gilles Deleuze: emancipation through dehumanization — 319
- 12.2 Jacques Rancière: emancipation through deregulation — 329
- 12.3 Reintroducing the agent of universality: politics turned into police — 340

Epilogue

The Practice of Recommencing: Toward a Cosmopolitanism of the Dispossessed Belonging — 345

References — 357

Index — 385