

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION, SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS	9
Mandate, Aim and Scope of the Study	9
Summary of Findings	10
Conclusions: Protection as an Instrument of Policy	21

Part I

THE IMPACT OF PROTECTION: AN ECONOMY-WIDE PERSPECTIVE

Chapter 1. RECENT TRENDS IN TRADE POLICY FOR MANUFACTURED PRODUCTS	26
Tariff protection	26
Non-tariff barriers	30
– The overall scope of NTBs	30
– The products affected by NTBs	34
– The range of exporting countries restricted	34
– The persistence of NTBs	36
Trade-distorting domestic measures	37
Chapter 2. THE IMPACT ON TRADE FLOWS AND PRICES	42
The effect of protective measures in the 1970s	42
– The nature of the restrictions imposed	45
– Features of the protected sectors	45
– Growing economic interdependence	46
Diminishing scope for shifts in the 1980s	47
Price effects	48
– Due to cost differentials	48
– Due to commodity composition	49
– And due to price-cost margins	49
Chapter 3. THE IMPACT ON EMPLOYMENT	52
Effects of trade restrictions in the protected sector	52
Trade restrictions and sectoral output	54
Output and employment	56
Protection and the composition of employment	58
Protection and aggregate employment	60
Job creation in the medium term	62

Chapter 4. PROTECTION, COMPETITIVENESS AND EFFICIENCY	66
The parameters of competitiveness	66
The costs of adjustment	67
Options for adjustment	68
The impact of protection	69
– In fragmented activities	69
– In oligopolistic activities	72
Adjustment enhancing impacts	73
– Profitability	73
– Coordination with foreign suppliers	74
Constraints on adjustment	76
– The risks and costs of change	76
– The diminishing advantages of protection	77
The longer-term outcome	79

Part II

PROTECTION IN SELECTED INDUSTRIES

Chapter 5. STEEL	86
Characteristics of the steel industry	86
– Patterns of supply and demand	86
– The capacity to adjust	88
– Differences between the United States and Europe	90
Policies for the steel industry in the US and EEC	91
The impact of policies	95
– On prices and trade flows	96
– On output, employment and wages	99
– On profitability and structural adjustment	100
Prospects	102
Chapter 6. TEXTILES AND CLOTHING	107
Industry characteristics	107
– The protectionist response	107
The impact on prices	109
Diminishing scope for diversion	110
The impact on employment	112
Structural adjustment	120
– The textile industry	122
– The clothing industry	125
Prospects	128
Chapter 7. AUTOMOBILES	131
Industry characteristics and developments	131
The impact of policies	136
– Import penetration and domestic output	136
– Trade composition	137

– Prices	139
– Employment and Wages	141
– Profitability	142
– Industrial restructuring	143
Prospects	146
Chapter 8. CONSUMER ELECTRONICS: THE CASE OF COLOUR TELEVISION RECEIVERS	149
The period to 1975	149
The 1977 Orderly Marketing Agreement	151
– The impact on trade	155
Extension of the OMA	156
The impact on foreign producers	157
The adjustment process in the US industry	163
Prospects	164
 Part III
PROTECTIONISM AND INTERDEPENDENCE
Chapter 9. PROTECTIONISM AND DEVELOPING COUNTRIES	170
The evolution of protection and North-South trade	171
The impact of protection on LDC trade	175
The implications of continuing protectionism	179
– Continuing protectionism and LDC exports	179
– Implications for the international debt situation	180
– Increased protection and economic performance	182
Chapter 10. THE POLITICS AND ECONOMICS OF PROTECTION	184
The domestic politics of protection	184
– Structural shifts in trade	185
– Adjustment in a recessionary context	187
– Diminished flexibility	191
The supply of protection: Government response to pressure	192
– Interest group pressure	192
– The receptiveness of government	194
The international dimension	196
– The incentives for developing international arrangements	196
– The constraints on developing international arrangements	197
– Changes in international arrangements	198
The outlook for policy	199
LIST OF TABLES AND GRAPHS	204
ECONOMETRIC ANNEX TO CHAPTER 6	206
ECONOMETRIC ANNEX TO CHAPTER 8	214
BIBLIOGRAPHY	226