

Introduction

	'Three new library books lay virginally on the fender-stool'	1
1	War 'But for me . . . a war is poor fun'	14
2	Surplus Women 'Lord Lord! how many daughters have been murdered by women like this!'	37
3	Feminism 'If I'd had still-rooms and linen rooms and dairies . . . I might never have wanted to get out'	63
4	Domesticity 'An ordinary domesticated female'	94
5	Sex 'A pagan body and a Chislehurst mind'	121
6	Psychoanalysis 'All that repressed libido'	147
7	Romance 'Came the Dawn'	173

A Very Great Profession

8 Love
‘“Oh, dulling,” said my mother sadly. “One always thinks that. Every, every time.”’	198
Epilogue
‘ Things she would never know again ’	225
Afterword
Thirteen years on	236
Notes	249
Glossary	267
Index	277