

THE AMBIVALENCES OF MEDIEVAL RELIGIOUS DRAMA

Rainer Warning

Translated by Steven Rendall

Stanford University Press, Stanford, California, 2001

Contents

Foreword by Hans Ulrich Gumbrecht ix

Acknowledgments xvii

Introduction: Function and Structure 1

PART I.

The End Brought Near: The Liturgical Visitatio Sepulchri and the Vernacular Easter Plays

1. Liturgical Celebration and Allegorization of the Mass:
The Visitatio Sepulchri Between Kerygma and Myth 27

2. From the Visitatio Sepulchri to the Descensus Ad Inferos:
Jesus' Descent into Hell As Cardinal Function 45

3. From the Visitatio Sepulchri to the Mythical Östarūn:
The Marys Play As Catalyzer 66

4. From Glad Tidings to the Risus Paschalis:
The Easter Play and Ritualistic Laughter 100

PART II.

The Inferred Beginning: The Adam Play

5. The Fall in the Ambivalence of Dramatic and Substantial Dualism 115

6. Figural Events in the Locus and Archetypal Events on the Platea 126

7. The Play's Dualism and Dogmatics' Exclusions:
Anselm of Canterbury's Cur Deus Homo 137

PART III.

The Archaic Middle: The Passion Play

8. The Passion Play Between Mythologeme and Theologumenon 155

9. Jesus As Scapegoat I: Compassio and Ritual Graphicness 179

10. Jesus As Scapegoat II:
Typology As Desymbolized Pseudocommunication 207

11. Jesus As Scapegoat III:
"Nominalist Theater"—Archaic Sacrifice Play 226

Conclusion: "Play" As a Class of Functional Equivalents 243

Afterword 249

Notes 263

Bibliography 301