

CONTENTS

Foreword and Acknowledgments	v
Preface Nathan Schmukler, Dean, School of Social Sciences, Brooklyn College of City University of New York	ix
Introduction G.H.N. Seton-Watson	1
Ethics and Morals in Hungarian Public Life Imre Nagy	9
Twenty Years Ago Anna Kéthly	19
Part I. Domestic Aspects of the Hungarian Revolution
Intellectual Aspects Tamás Aczél	25
Economic Aspects Paul Jónás	33
Political Aspects József Kővágyó	39
International Aspects George G. Heltai	47
Military Aspects Béla K. Király	57
The Trial of Imre Nagy Tibor Méray	73
Part II. The Revolution and Hungary's Neighbors
Letter to the Editor Andrey A. Amalrik	85
Poland Adam Bromke	87

Rumania
Stephen Fischer-Galați	95
Yugoslavia
George Klein	103
Czechoslovakia
Paul E. Zinner	113

Part III. The Revolution and the West

Imre Nagy and Eurocommunism
Stephen Borsody	127
Western Europe
Péter Kende	135
The United States
Imre Kovács	145
Biographies of the Contributors	153