

CONTENTS

	Page
CHAPTER I
An account of Mr Gamaliel Pickle—The disposition of his Sister described—He yields to her solicitations, and retires to the Country	1
CHAPTER II
He is made acquainted with the characters of Commodore Trunnion and his adherents; meets with them by accident, and contracts an intimacy with that Commander	5
CHAPTER III
Mrs Grizzle exerts herself in finding a proper Match for her Brother; who is accordingly introduced to the young Lady, whom he marries in due season.	16
CHAPTER IV
The Behaviour of Mrs Grizzle at the Wedding, with an account of the Guests	21
CHAPTER V
Mrs Pickle assumes the Reins of Government in her own Family—Her Sister-in-law undertakes an enterprize of great moment; but is for some time diverted from her Purpose by a very interesting Consideration	24
CHAPTER VI
Mrs Grizzle is indefatigable in gratifying her Sister's Longings—Peregrine is born, and managed contrary to the directions and remonstrances of his Aunt, who is disgusted upon that account, and resumes the plan which she had before rejected.	30
CHAPTER VII
Divers Stratagems are invented and put in practice, in order to overcome the Obstinacy of Trunnion, who at length is teased and tortured into the noose of Wedlock	40
CHAPTER VIII
Preparations are made for the Commodore's Wedding, which is delayed by an Accident that hurried him the Lord knows whither	45

CONTENTS

	Page
CHAPTER IX
He is found by the Lieutenant; reconducted to his own House; Married to Mrs Grizzle, who meets with a small Misfortune in the Night, and asserts her Prerogative next Morning; in consequence of which her Husband's Eye is endangered	53
CHAPTER X
The Commodore being in some cases restive, his Lady has recourse to artifice in the Establishment of her Throne—She exhibits symptoms of Pregnancy, to the unspeakable joy of Trunnion, who nevertheless is baulked in his expectation	59
CHAPTER XI
Mrs Trunnion erects a Tyranny in the Garrison, while her Husband conceives an affection for his Nephew Perry, who manifests a Peculiarity of Disposition even in his Tender Years	65
CHAPTER XII
Peregrine is sent to a Boarding-school—Becomes remarkable for his Genius and Ambition	69
CHAPTER XIII
The Commodore takes Peregrine under his own Care—The Boy arrives at the Garrison—Is strangely received by his own Mother—Enters into a Confederacy with Hatchway and Pipes, and executes a couple of waggish Enterprizes upon his Aunt	77
CHAPTER XIV
He is also by their Device engaged in an Adventure with the Exciseman, who does not find his Account in his own Drollery	87
CHAPTER XV
The Commodore detects the Machinations of the Conspirators, and hires a Tutor for Peregrine, whom he settles at Winchester School	93
CHAPTER XVI
Peregrine distinguishes himself among his Schoolfellows, exposes his Tutor, and attracts the particular Notice of the Master	98
CHAPTER XVII
He is concerned in a dangerous Adventure with a certain Gardener—Sublimes his Ideas, commences Gallant, and becomes acquainted with Miss Emily Gauntlet	103

CONTENTS

	Page
CHAPTER XVIII
He inquires into the Situation of this Young Lady with whom he is enamoured—Elopes from School—Is found by the Lieutenant, conveyed to Winchester, and sends a Letter with a copy of Verses to his Mistress	111
CHAPTER XIX
His Messenger meets with a Misfortune, to which he applies a very extraordinary Expedient that is attended with strange Consequences	120
CHAPTER XX
Peregrine is summoned to attend his Uncle—Is more and more hated by his own Mother—Appeals to his Father, whose Condescension is defeated by the Dominion of his Wife . . .	126
CHAPTER XXI
Trunnion is enraged at the Conduct of Pickle—Peregrine resents the Injustice of his Mother, to whom he explains his Sentiments in a Letter—Is entered at the University of Oxford, where he signalizes himself as a youth of an Enterprizing Genius	131
CHAPTER XXII
He is insulted by his Tutor, whom he Lampoons—Makes a considerable Progress in polite Literature; and, in an Excursion to Windsor, meets with Emilia by accident, and is very coldly received	137
CHAPTER XXIII
After sundry unsuccessful Efforts, he finds means to come to an Explanation with his Mistress; and a Reconciliation ensues .	144
CHAPTER XXIV
He achieves an Adventure at the Assembly, and Quarrels with his Governor	153
CHAPTER XXV
He receives a Letter from his Aunt, Breaks with the Commodore, and Disobliges the Lieutenant, who, nevertheless, undertakes his Cause	160
CHAPTER XXVI
He becomes Melancholy and Despondent—Is Favoured with a Condescending Letter from his Uncle—Reconciles Himself to his Governor, and sets out with Emilia and her Friend for Mrs Gauntlet's House	167

CONTENTS

	Page
CHAPTER XXVII
They meet with a Dreadful Alarm on the Road—Arrive at their Journey's End—Peregrine is Introduced to Emily's Brother—These two Young Gentlemen misunderstand each other—Pickle departs for the Garrison	172
CHAPTER XXVIII
Peregrine is overtaken by Mr Gauntlet, with whom he fights a Duel, and contracts an intimate Friendship—He arrives at the Garrison, and finds his Mother as implacable as ever—He is Insulted by his Brother Gam, whose Preceptor he disciplines with a Horse-whip	179
CHAPTER XXIX
He projects a Plan of Revenge, which is executed against the Curate	186
CHAPTER XXX
Mr Sackbut and his Pupil Conspire against Peregrine, who, being Apprised of their Design by his Sister, takes Measures for Counterworking their Scheme, which is Executed by Mistake upon Mr Gauntlet—This young Soldier meets with a cordial Reception from the Commodore, who generously Decoys him into his own Interest	191
CHAPTER XXXI
The two young Gentlemen display their Talents for Gallantry, in the course of which they are involved in a ludicrous Circumstance of Distress, and afterwards take Vengeance on the Author of their Mishap	199
CHAPTER XXXII
The Commodore sends a Challenge to Gamaliel, and is Imposed upon by a Waggish Invention of the Lieutenant, Peregrine, and Gauntlet	205
CHAPTER XXXIII
Peregrine takes his Leave of his Aunt and Sister—Sets out from the Garrison—Parts with his Uncle and Hatchway on the Road; and, with his Governor, Arrives in safety at Dover	209
CHAPTER XXXIV
He adjusts the Method of his Correspondence with Gauntlet—Meets by Accident with an Italian Charlatan, and a certain Apothecary, who proves to be a Noted Character	213

CONTENTS

	Page
CHAPTER XXXV
He Embarks for France—Is Overtaken by a Storm—Is surprised with the Appearance of Pipes—Lands at Calais, and has an Affray with the Officers of the Custom-house	220
CHAPTER XXXVI
He makes a Fruitless Attempt in Gallantry—Departs for Boulogne, where he Spends the Evening with certain English Exiles	228
CHAPTER XXXVII
Proceeds for the Capital—Takes up his Lodging at Bernay, where he is Overtaken by Mr Hornbeck, whose Head he longs to Fortify	235
CHAPTER XXXVIII
They set out in Company, Breakfast at Abbeville, Dine at Amiens, and about Eleven o'clock arrive at Chantilly, where Peregrine executes a Plan which he had concerted upon Hornbeck.	239
CHAPTER XXXIX
He is involved in an Adventure at Paris, and taken Prisoner by the City-guard—Becomes acquainted with a French Nobleman, who introduces him in the Beau Monde	243
CHAPTER XL
Acquires a distinct Idea of the French Government—Quarrels with a Mousquetaire, whom he afterwards fights and vanquishes, after having punished him for interfering in his amorous Recreations	251
CHAPTER XLI
Mr Jolter threatens to leave him on account of his Misconduct, which he promises to rectify; but his Resolution is defeated by the Impetuosity of his Passions—He meets accidentally with Mrs Hornbeck, who elopes with him from her Husband, but is restored by the Interposition of the British Ambassador	259
CHAPTER XLII
Peregrine resolves to return to England; is diverted with the odd Characters of Two of his Countrymen, with whom he contracts an Acquaintance in the Apartments of the Palais Royal	267

CONTENTS

	Page
CHAPTER XLIII
He introduces his new Friends to Mr Jolter, with whom the Doctor enters into a Dispute upon Government, which had well nigh terminated in open War	275
CHAPTER XLIV
The Doctor prepares an Entertainment in the Manner of the Ancients, which is attended with divers ridiculous Circumstances.	281
CHAPTER XLV
The Painter is persuaded to accompany Pickle to a Masquerade in Woman's Apparel; is engaged in a troublesome Adventure, and, with his Companion, conveyed to the Bastile	291
CHAPTER XLVI
By the Fidelity of Pipes, Jolter is informed of his Pupil's Fate—Confers with the Physician—Applies to the Ambassador, who, with great Difficulty, obtains the Discharge of the Prisoners on certain Conditions	296
CHAPTER XLVII
Peregrine makes Himself merry at the Expense of the Painter, who curses his Landlady, and breaks with the Doctor	300